Col. Warren S. Everett disclosed yesterday that he has recommended a site for the Jonesville lock and dam, then announced that the Columbia structure will be located upstream from the Caldwell Parish seat.

Davis Gives Top Priority To Tidelands

Says Settlement Is Main Project Of State Regime

BATON ROUGE (AP) — An equitable tidelands settlement with the federal government is the big est priority project facing Louisiana state government at this time, Gov. Jimmie H. Davis said Friday.

Next Tuesday, a federal-state committee sits down in Washington to determine whether Geneva convention principles allowing nations to use maximum interpretations in setting coastlines would apply to Louisiana.

ASKS PRAYERS

Louisiana Att. Gen. Jack Gremillion Thursday said the best hope Louisiana had for a tidelands settlement was pray and ask President Kennedy's three-year-old daughter, Caroline, to put in a good word.

Gremillion also said a tremendous amount of political influence would be needed for accord with the federal government over the tidelands. A total of some $350 million in oil production revenues from the disputed territory in the offshore region is held in escrow by the courts.

Gov. Davis said, "I have felt, in the past, that we can arrive at a settlement beneficial to our state and I still feel that way."

"I believe the people and members of the legislature expect me to do everything possible" to accomplish a tidelands settlement.

"Because political considerations will influence a tidelands settlement," Davis continued, "our hopes rest largely in the hands of members of the Louisiana congressional delegation."

"I have complete confidence in their ability and their determination to accomplish this, and will continue to work closely with them."

U.S. Arrests First Smuggler Of Vitamin B12

NEW YORK (AP) — The Customs Service announced Friday an arrest termed unprecedented in United States history—that of a man accused of trying to smuggle a shipment of vitamin B12 into this country.

The man was identified as Constantino Peretti, about 27, an Italian pharmaceutical dealer, whose address was listed as Via Mercalli 80, Rome. He was described as the son of a prominent munitions manufacturer, who also owns several pharmaceutical houses.

He was detained as he started to leave Idlewild Airport Wednesday night, after arriving from Switzerland, because customs agents thought his clothing bulged suspiciously.

Officers said they found several flat plastic bags containing more than four pounds of a reddish-purple powder which later proved to be vitamin B12.

Coastline Pact Details Cited

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Times-Picayune, in its editions for Saturday, said it had obtained a secret agreement between state and federal officials on what they say is the location of Louisiana's coastline.

At stake are approximately $400 million in royalties from offshore oil leases plus an estimated $25 million the state could realize in taxes.

"The agreement generally sets the contact line of mean low water of the Gulf of Mexico with the mainland and adjacent islands of Louisiana," The Times-Picayune said.

"It follows closely the so-called Chapman line which excludes from Louisiana the biggest part of several rich oil and gas fields that extend from the shore into the water of the adjacent bays."

U.S. Decides To End Talks On Test Ban

Soviet Reversal Kills Hopes For Pact At Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has decided to halt the Geneva atomic test-ban talks and push consideration of the issue at the forthcoming 18-nation general disarmament conference.

This was disclosed Friday by a high U.S. authority, who predicted that next Monday's scheduled meeting of the Geneva parley will be the last in its three-year history.

BLAMES SOVIETS

Accusing the Soviet Union of a fraudulent turnabout, he said Moscow has made it abundantly clear that it does not want an effective test treaty but seeks only to pin on the West the blame for the failure of the conference.

The Washington view was made known to newsmen on the heels of Soviet rejection in Geneva earlier in the day of a reluctant U.S.-British offer to merge the test ban talks with the general disarmament conference to begin at Geneva March 14.

For months now, the Soviet Union has been calling for a merger of the talks on grounds that true disarmament could not be limited just to atomic tests. After unsuccessfully arguing that disarmament should be pushed in the field where progress seemed most likely, the United States and Britain finally yielded with a Jan. 16 offer to merge the talks.

The Soviet about-face was presented at the 353rd Geneva test-ban session Friday by delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin. Tsarapkin insisted that the three-nation talks continue—and that the talks deal with the Red demand for an unpoliced test moratorium, not the West's proposal for a ban with anticheating controls.

The Moscow reversal killed what few hopes remained in the West for agreement at the atomic test parley, once regarded by both the Eisenhower and the Kennedy administrations as the brightest prospect for East-West accord on an important issue.

On the record, State Department press officer Lincoln White declined comment except to say that the U.S. and British delegates at Geneva had referred Tsarapkin's answer to their home governments.

ANSWERS ALL HIS

Virginian Suggests Junk Mail Solution

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here's a tip for that California housewife—or anyone else — irritated by junk mail: Answer it.

The tip comes from Jay Smith of Alexandria, Va., who says he's been doing just that for years. His suggestion that junk mail be answered was contained in a letter to Mrs. Robert Richard of Palo Alto, Calif.

Mrs. Richard, incensed by the amount of advertising circulars and letters delivered to her home, bundled some of it up and shipped it to postal officials in Washington to emphasize her complaint about low bulk mail rates.

Smith said in his letter to Mrs. Richard that he's sure postal officials and Congress are aware of the situation.

"But who can fight the lobby?" he asked.

"Who?" why, the NAAJM, he said, adding that the initials stand for National Association for Answering Junk Mail.

"You are automatically a member when you answer your first letter. How do you answer?"

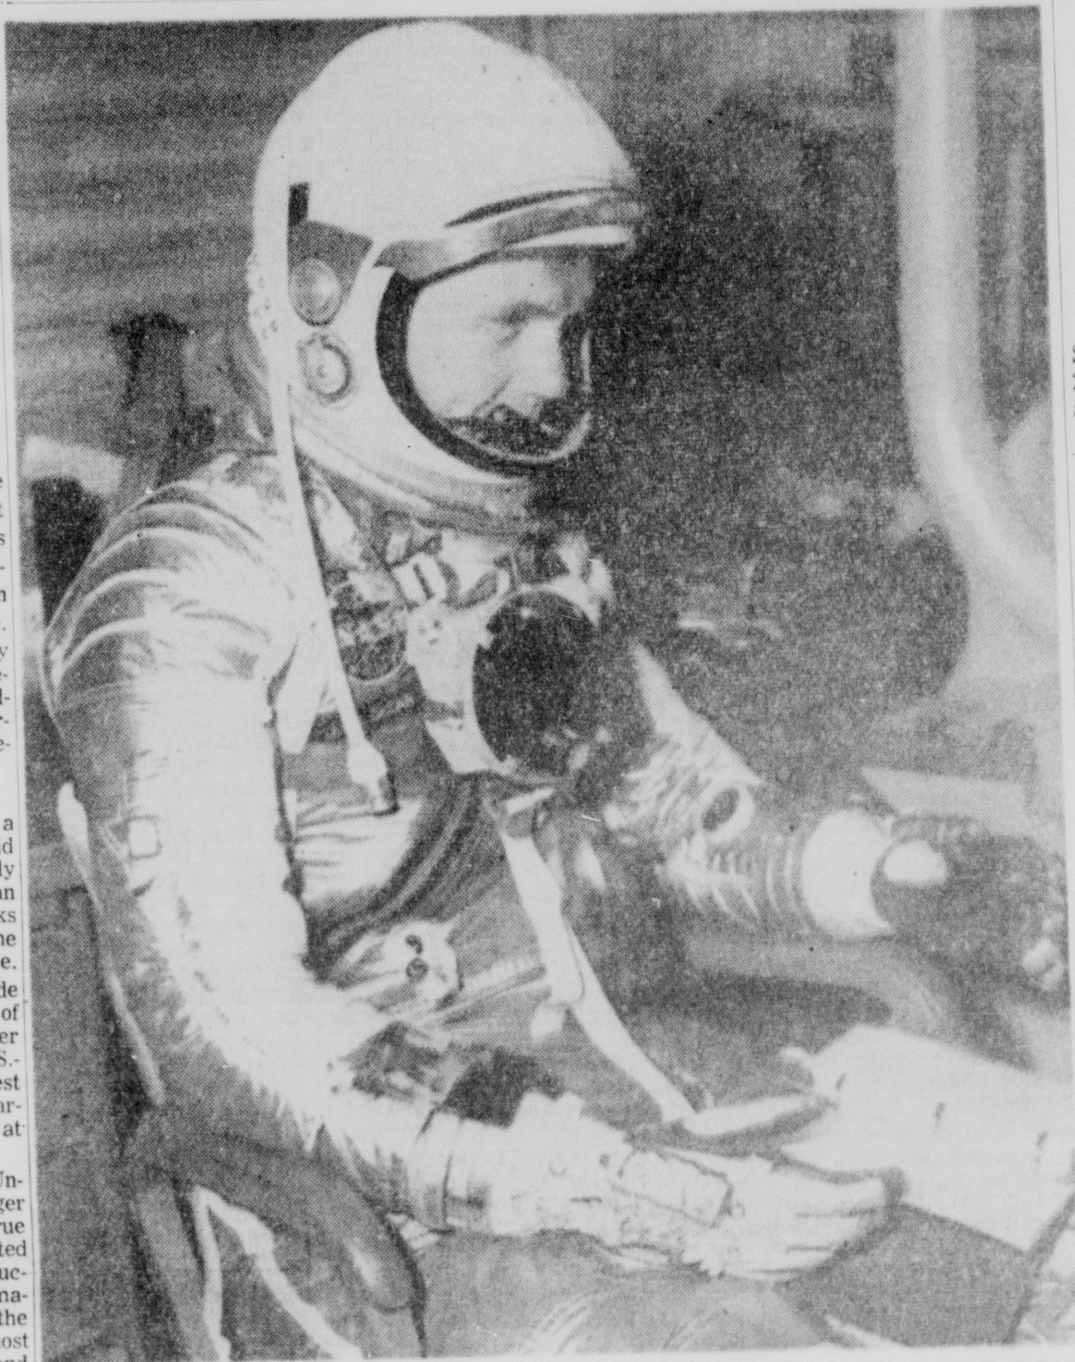

"When you receive your daily delivery, cautiously open the 'postal inspection' flap and remove the business reply envelope or card—leave the other junk to be returned to the sender — he may have use for it."

"Replace the flap and on the card or blank merely write, 'No, thanks. Please remove my name from your mailing list.'"

"Either tape or glue the return card or envelope to the original container."

"Place on those letters not already so marked, 'AIR MAIL.'"

Smith, noting that postage on the return mail must be paid by the originator said: "This is fair, since he wants an answer."

MARINE CORPS COLONEL John Glenn reads up on outer space while training for this orbital trip into space. The shot is expected today. (AP Wire-photo)

Mrs. Glenn Confident On Launch Eve

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — A small brunette with sparkling brown eyes, Mrs. John H. Glenn Jr., was "calm and confident—very much so" Friday on the eve of her husband's journey into space.

This was the way a close friend described the wife of the Marine Corps lieutenant colonel who Saturday may become America's first man to orbit the earth.

PLANS AHEAD

Preparations were under way at the Glenns' attractive contemporary brick bungalow home in Arlington, a suburb of Washington.

Mrs. Glenn was going to make a big bowl of chili—a dish of hers with top-notch rating among the family and friends—for informal eating Saturday. There'll be no cooking then.

The house has four television sets so the family can follow on TV Glenn's adventure into space. "And if I know Annie, she'll be glued to that set, just like a kid," a friend said of Mrs. Glenn.

Mrs. Glenn has been talking over the telephone with her husband almost daily lately.

LAUNCH DUE TODAY

Astronaut Ready For Orbit Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The countdown clicked off flawlessly, the weather outlook was good, and John T. Glenn Jr. was cool, fit and ready Friday on the eve of his epic rocket ride into orbit.

The 40-year-old Marine Corps lieutenant colonel was reported aware of the risk — but he gave no sign of fear that something would go wrong when he blasts off from this spaceport Saturday, aiming for three orbital circuits from 100 to 150 miles above earth at about 17,500 miles an hour.

The months of intensive preparations approached climax pitch and all the signs were promising after four postponements because of a variety of troubles in the Atlas rocket and the two-ton "Friendship 7" space capsule.

NO SNAGS

The first five hours of the 11-hour countdown went off Friday without a snag. The remaining six hours of the count—which involves a detailed final check of the entire system—was due to be resumed shortly after midnight.

With blastoff set for 7:30 a.m., that gave 90 minutes leeway to straighten out any last-minute kinks.

All showers in the Ouachita Parish are expected to end this morning as they are replaced by dropping temperatures which have constantly invaded the area for the entire month.

Clearing skies and cooler temperatures are forecast today and expected to turn fair and cool tonight.

Today's high is forecast to reach 54 and the low is expected to fall to 34 degrees.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at Jackson, Miss., reported last night that no tornadoes had been reported to them. The Bureau had issued a forecast of tornadoes expected for Southern Louisiana last night.

Rain fell in the Twin City area in the amount of .7 inches Friday. High temperature reached 73 degrees while the low fell to 55 degrees.

Glenn's mission—the first by an American into orbit—will, if successful, carry U.S. manned space exploration to its farthest frontier yet.

But Lt. Col. John Powers, spokesman for the seven-man astronaut team, noted it is a "tiny little step" toward the objective of landing an American on the moon in this decade.

Glenn and his standby pilot, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Malcolm Scott Carpenter, 36, were spending the day studying and reviewing the flight plan, technical reports, launch preparation data and the like.

They also were due to confer with key officials on the various phases of the worldwide Project Mercury operation involving 18 tracking stations, more than 20 recovery ships, many planes and thousands of persons.

The green-eyed, compactly-built Marine pilot and his standby have

Spokesman Says Unexpected Kick Adds To Speed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The United States fired a spacecraft at the moon Friday, but a 20,000- to 30,000-mile miss will send it into orbit around the sun.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the gold- and silver-plated instrument package failed on its mission because of "excessive velocity," but he didn't spell it out.

At Project Ranger's home, the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif., another spokesman said that while the instrument package would miss, an effort might still be made to photograph the moon as planned.

TERSE REPORT The Russians successfully photographed the moon in 1959 from over 37,000 miles away.

The terse report from NASA headquarters here did not specify just how much more than the planned 24,500 miles an hour speed, the spacecraft attained.

As a result of the added and unexpected kick, there will, of course, be no instrument reports from the moon.

The NASA announcement said that instead of 66 hours of the flight, the spacecraft would pass the moon's trajectory in 50 to 55 hours.

The NASA spokesman said precise figures on the trajectory would be available later after a

U.S. Report On Nuclear Arms Issued

Size Of Arsenal Referred To In Official's Talk

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A State Department official said Friday the United States has "tens of thousands" of nuclear delivery vehicles—such as bombers and missiles—and "more than one warhead for each vehicle."

Deputy Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson gave that report on the size of the U.S. nuclear arsenal in a speech prepared for an American Bar Association seminar on communism.

STATEMENT

He coupled it with a statement that the United States would never resort to general war "while any honorable alternative remained." But this country "must insure that the Soviets would never do so" either, he said.

"There is considerable evidence," Johnson said, "that the Soviet leaders recognize full well that general nuclear war would spell utter ruin for themselves, even if it brought ruin on others."

Johnson, who is the top professional foreign service officer in the State Department, recalled a speech by Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell Gilpatric made several months ago. Gilpatric had said the United States had so great a nuclear capability that even if it were hit by surprise attack it could strike back with

Kennedy Plans To See Launch Of Astronaut

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — President Kennedy left orders on Friday to be awakened as early as necessary Saturday morning to watch America's first manned orbital space flight on television.

The Chief Executive, spending the weekend here with his valet, will be only about 125 miles south of the actual launch site.

Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the winter White House would be in direct telephone contact with space agency officials at Cape Canaveral throughout the late countdown and actual orbiting of Maine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr.

READY FOR BIG DAY

Parents To Watch Glenn's Blast Off

NEW CONCORD, Ohio (AP)—Mrs. John H. Glenn Sr. has her blue suit and her television set ready for the big day—the day her son, Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., blasts off to orbit the earth.

The television sets will enable Mr. and Mrs. Glenn to watch the proceedings on all networks in the privacy of their home on Westview Drive here.

The blue suit is for the press conference she and her husband will hold in the gymnasium of Muskingum College after the orbital flight.

"We haven't been upset by the delays, but delays are not pleasant, no matter what they are," she said.

The Glenns spoke to their son Tuesday. "He was at the top of the gantry," she said, "and had some spare moments while waiting for the trial run. He called us from there."

She said her son did not seem upset about the delays. "We're all just going along with it. I expect another call from him sometime before the flight," she said.

While the elder Glenns are rooting for their son, they are also rooting for the space program as a whole.

"We hope he gets picked up by the Randolph"—one of several ships in the Caribbean waiting to bring the astronaut aboard—she said.

"That will mean he has completed the proposed three orbits," Mrs. Glenn said. "If one of the other ships picks him up it means they had to bring him down after only one or two trips. We do hope he completes the three."

NINE-FOOT CHANNEL project for the Ouachita River is discussed aboard the U. S. Lipscomb near Columbia by (left to right) H. K. Thatcher, executive vice president of the Ouachita River Valley Association, of Camden, Ark., Ed Seymour, Tensas Levee Board member, of Monroe, Col. project, which Col. Everett said will cost about $30-million.

Four new locks and dams will be constructed in the overall Ouachita River project.

On the Columbia site, Col. Everett listed several reasons for locating it upstream near Eagle's Lake on the Ouachita:

1. Elimination of the need to reconstruct the highway bridge at Columbia, plus a railroad bridge upstream from Columbia.
2. Preference of building the lock and dam on dry land to chop costs.
3. Elimination of two bends in the river, which will cut the distance of the Ouachita by one mile.

4. Eliminate the need of removing Lock No. 3 on the river.

5. Must have a site with a 1,000-foot clearance site so that tows can see the structure from the river.

"The Columbia lock and dam will be the first work on the 9-foot channel," Col. Everett said.

"I expect to begin work in the spring of '63."

The Caldwell delegation, comprised of municipal officials and members of the Caldwell Board and Police Jury, climbed aboard the Lipscomb at Riverton.

They planned to get off at Jonesville where a Catahoula delegation, plus Assistant Wildlife Director Richard Yancey, was scheduled to go aboard.

"I am making a cruise of the Ouachita to get the feel of the river," Col. Everett explained.

He became district engineer March 31, 1961 and the cruise was his first on the Ouachita.

On the Jonesville location, Col. Everett said his recommendation of the site was made to Gen. Thomas A. Lane, president of the Mississippi River Commission at Vicksburg.

In an interview, the Vicksburg district chief said he felt the controversy surrounding the site encouraged the Army engineers to "dig deeper into the subject."

While civic groups called for a downstream location at Jonesville, the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission recommended an upstream location, since Catahoula Lake is a factor in the outcome.

Here is what Col. Everett said: "Studies of two above Jonesville and two below Jonesville sites for the structure are in progress. We have considered several pool elevations for each location."

"We are taking into consideration the views of the various groups and individuals that have exhibited interest in this structure as well as the engineering considerations involved."

"From an engineering standpoint it appears that while a site above Jonesville would be less expensive in first cost, the substantial saving in maintenance dredging at a site below Jonesville would offset its greater first cost. A decision regarding the location of Jonesville Lock and Dam will be made in the near future."

Because of the interest in waterfowl and fisheries at Catahoula Lake, the Army engineers employed a biologist, Dr. Gordon Ginter, to assist in the studies.

Dr. Ginter is director of the Gulf Coast Marine Laboratory at Ocean Springs, Miss.

"Because of the population increase in this country, there will be a great growth and development in this Ouachita valley," Col. Everett said.

"Therefore, I picked that year because that's about 100 years after this system will have gone in operation."

He added, "This brings out the importance of the preservation of wildlife, as well as the importance of the preservation of water, and I think that my recommendation will meet all demands."

With two locks and dams to be located in Louisiana and two in Arkansas on the Ouachita, the Army engineers, in creating the 9-foot channel, have tentative plans for 18 cut-offs on the river.

For navigation purposes, Col. Everett said 18 bends will be cut out of the river.

This will shorten the distance of the Ouachita by 30 miles.

The district chief explained that five cut-offs are planned for Louisiana's section of the Ouachita — three above Sterlington, one below Monroe and one below Columbia.

Once completed, the channel will cover 336 miles, from the mouth of the Red River to Camden, Ark. to the Ouachita.

On the fiscal picture of the channel project, Col. Everett explained that Congress appropriated $250,000 in fiscal year '62 for engineering.

Most of this has gone to the study of the Jonesville lock and dam, he said. With fiscal year '62 approach, Col. Everett is hoping for $235,000 to continue the studies.

"That's in the President's budget," he explained.

Nearing an end at Vicksburg on Sunday, the cruise of the Ouachita began last Sunday at Jonesville, heading upstream to Camden, then back downstream.

H. K. Thatcher, executive vice-president, of the Ouachita River Valley Association, of Camden was aboard on the downstream journey. Joining aboard here yesterday were two members of the Tensas Levee Board, Ed Seymour of Monroe and W. O. Chapman of Archibald.

Others aboard included Conrad K. Pierce, Bob Cotton and W. S. White, all of Jonesville, and E. N. Thompson, Monroe. The Caldwell delegation included Supt. Ted Johnson.

At Jonesville, the Catahoula delegation was expected to include another Tensas Levee Board member, W. C. Brown, plus Yancey, the assistant wildlife director.

a force at least as great as that first used against it.

Johnson said: "Our manned bomber force is the largest and most powerful in the world. Our intercontinental missile forces capable of striking the U.S.S.R. are greater than those of the Soviet Union capable of striking the United States. And we intend to preserve this favorable balance."

Johnson said the United States, while relying on strategic nuclear strength to deter an enemy attack, needs two other kinds of military power—the power to fight limited wars and the ability to deter or defeat by military means "revolutionary guerrilla wars and subversion."

Johnson said the United States has been building up its conventional military power to deal with limited threats and to handle so far as possible guerrilla warfare and subversion where they can be dealt with by military means. There is always the possibility "that the other side will miscalculate our reaction and set in motion a chain of events beyond his intention," Johnson added.

Spokesman Says Unexpected Kick Adds To Speed

conference on how much the guidance system can be utilized.

The news shortly after 8:20 p.m. EST knocked a large number of carefully calculated plans into a cocked hat.

At 3:30 p.m. Friday the United States had rocketed the gold- and silver-plated spacecraft toward the moon's bright side in the most complex space experiment ever attempted.

Initial reports from the space agency indicated an almost flawless performance in all phases of the launch.

The camera-equipped and instrument-laden, 727-pound package will now travel past the moon and out into space beyond and into an orbit around the sun.

Up until the time NASA announced the miss, this had seemed to be a remarkable technological achievement, one beyond all expectations.

For all practical purposes, one missile served as a launching pad in space for a second, payload-carrying missile.

The NASA scientists had hoped that by 9:30 a.m. Monday morning they would be able to have the answers to some ancient questions.

What does the moon look like close up? What is the composition of the moon's surface? Is it shaken by moonquakes and pounded by meteorites? How intense and deadly is the radiation from the sun?

This is knowledge that man must have if he is to land on the moon before the end of this decade and return safely.

It would be wrong to say NASA officials truly expected the experiment to work. They just hoped.

James D. Burke, Project Ranger director for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena, Calif., said at a news briefing, "We will be happy if only a fraction of the plan works."

Indeed, there are two more identical spacecraft and boosters under construction for use in similar shots.

As a space experiment the moon shot, known as Ranger 3, is far more complex than the one planned for Saturday—the send-off of astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., hurtling around the earth in a space capsule.

It was a good try, good enough to fool even the scientists. Dr. William Pickering, JPL director, said at 5:30 p.m., "We can say in a general way that the vehicle is leaving the earth on what appears to be a correct trajectory, but it will take several hours before we can say positively that it is on the correct trajectory."

And so it did.

Thus, what came close to being a bullseye is now a 20,000- to 30,000-mile miss.

The launching occurred only five minutes behind schedule. The 360,000-pound-thrust Atlas boost-er carried the missile 115 miles high. As the Ranger 3 coasted into its proper flight trajectory, the 15,000-pound-thrust Agena-B second stage fired for 2½ minutes, kicking itself and the payload to the 18,000 m.p.h. orbital speed.

It traveled in orbit for about eight minutes, or until it had positioned itself for a clear shot at the moon. At this point the Agena-B fired again—and this apparently is where matters went wrong.

Thus, the weird spacecraft will go around and around the sun for how long no one can now say.

It looks something like a dome-shaped mosque with two ironing boards and dish extending from its base.

If all had gone well, braking rockets would have slowed the spacecraft as it neared the moon's surface and a television camera would have been activated to take close-up pictures.

While the spacecraft itself plunged to destruction on the moon, an instrument package was to have been ejected at 1,100 feet from the moon to land on the pitted and scarred surface gently.

This now futile instrument package actually weighs only 56.7 pounds and the shock of its landing was to have been cushioned by 39.8 pounds of balsawood.

Once on the moon, the instruments were supposed to determine whether the moon was afflicted with moonquakes and pounded by meteorites. They were to measure deadly radiation.

paper said, but it listed his accounts.

These are some of the public relations spending outlined by The States-Times:

Three of the four accounts handled by Gould, Blieden and Manley last year were also under contract to them the previous year, but their retainer for the Highway Department account jumped from $7,200 in 1959-60 to $9,000 in 1960-61.

In addition, the Highway Department lists Olen LeBlanc on its public relations payroll at $7,200 a year, and Earl Bujol as a department information representative at $5,640.

That brings the tab for Highway Department public relations personnel, salaries and retainers only, not including travel or other expenses, to $21,240 a year.

The other carry-over accounts held by the GBM firm were the Conservation Department at $3,600 a year and the Department of Hospitals at $4,900 per year.

An addition last year was the State Sovereignty Commission, at $10,800 a year.

The Reed organization retainers include the Department of Commerce and Industry (for which it was paid $7,150 for 11 months of the 1960-61 fiscal year) which also carries D. J. Whittinghill on its payroll as a department information representative at $550 a month or $6,600 a year; the State Licensing Board for Contractors (for which it was paid $4200 for seven months of the fiscal year); state custodian of voting machines, parttime, for which it received $6,300 for the year; Department of Public Safety, $5,400 a year, and the Department of Revenue, $4,200 in fiscal 1961.

Louisiana State University lists seven fulltime employees for public relations, in addition to one departmental information representative, with salaries totaling $48,436.

Orleans Levee District, Alexander J. Vuilleumot, G. F. Moore and Bauerlein Inc., combination retainer totaling $10,000.

State Mineral Board, Bauerlein Inc., retainer, $6,000.

Public Welfare Department, Myrta Fair Craig, fulltime, $7,050.

State Colony and Training School, Mrs. Cora Schley, $3,600 for fulltime.

Wildlife and Fisheries, Claude Fresham, retainer, $3,600.

In addition the Wildlife and Fisheries Department carries three informational representatives on its staff for a total of $21,780 for the year.

been "going down the road together" in their rehearsals for the orbital expedition. If for any reason Glenn cannot make the flight, Carpenter would be ready to step in.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials obviously are not expecting any last-minute illness to thwart Glenn.

Asked to describe Glenn's physical shape, Powers replied with a grin: "I wouldn't want to get into a boxing ring with him."

Powers said Glenn wanted it stressed that although "we have reduced the risk as far as humanly possible, there's still a risk."

The astronauts' spokesman recalled that throughout history pioneers have faced risks, but that did not stop exploration.

What would happen if the system for bringing the space capsule back from orbit didn't work? reporters asked.

"We estimate he could survive about 24 hours," Powers said soberly.

This is because Glenn's capsule will carry an oxygen supply for that period—about 19 hours more than needed for the planned three orbits that would take 4 hours and 50 minutes.

In response to a question, Powers said Glenn would not carry the quick death capsule with him, minimum of three hours of day-light needed in the recovery areas.

Powers said Project Mercury of the capsule is equipped with four separate methods of firing a covey of small rockets whose job it is to brake the spacecraft to a slow enough speed so gravity can take hold and pull it back into the atmosphere. These braking rockets can be fired by ground command or by Glenn.

The weather caused postponements of short-range space flights last year by Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Virgil I. Grissom.

This time, NASA said generally good weather is expected to continue Saturday.

A minimum of cloudiness is required over this launch site so the performance of the rocket can be observed up to 250,000 feet. Calm seas and gentle winds are needed in the recovery areas.

The forecast over the Cape: "Considerable high, thin cloudiness, patchy ground fog in the early morning, gentle wind and slight sea."

The number of orbits that will be attempted will hinge on the time the rocket gets off the ground and on weather conditions at vital points in the recovery and tracking system that girdles the globe.

Also, Glenn's flight might have to be cut short if trouble develops in flight, as it did in the recent orbital journey of Enos, the chimpanzee. In such case, the decision might have to be made in seconds.

As now projected, a three-orbit effort will be made if Glenn's rocket roars skyward before 9:30 a.m.

Should the launch come between 9:30 and 11 a.m., Powers said the objective may be cut to two orbits. A further delay beyond 11 that period—about 19 hours more than needed for the planned three orbits that would take 4 hours and 50 minutes.

The whole mission likely would be postponed if the launch was held up beyond 12:30 because a later takeoff would not allow the minimum of three hours of daylight needed in the recovery areas.

Powers said Project Mercury of the capsule is equipped with four separate methods of firing a covey of small rockets whose job it is to brake the spacecraft to a slow enough speed so gravity can take hold and pull it back into the atmosphere. These braking rockets can be fired by ground command or by Glenn.

The weather caused postponements of short-range space flights last year by Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Virgil I. Grissom.

This time, NASA said generally good weather is expected to continue Saturday.

A minimum of cloudiness is required over this launch site so the performance of the rocket can be observed up to 250,000 feet. Calm seas and gentle winds are needed in the recovery areas.

The forecast over the Cape: "Considerable high, thin cloudiness, patchy ground fog in the early morning, gentle wind and slight sea."

The number of orbits that will be attempted will hinge on the time the rocket gets off the ground and on weather conditions at vital points in the recovery and tracking system that girdles the globe.

Tangipahoa Man Killed In Accident

LORANGER, La. (AP)—A two-car, head-on collision near here Thursday night killed Charles M. Wagner, 36, of Loranger.

State police said Wagner's car collided with the other auto which was attempting to pass a truck.

officials would be "satisfied with one orbit, pleased with two, and mighty happy with three."

Even with one orbit, Powers said, Glenn would experience 18 times as much weightlessness as either Shepard or Grissom underwent on their suborbital flights.

Pilot performance under conditions of weightlessness is one of the major matters to be studied in Glenn's flight. It is important to later, more ambitious expeditions deeper into space.

Three Barred From Return To Southern

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Three Negro student leaders of anti-segregation demonstrations, ousted by all-Negro Southern University near here, Friday failed in a final attempt to return.

Earlier, Dr. Felton G. Clark, president, who temporarily closed the university amid continuing demonstrations and emotional outbursts by students, said as the 4,300 students registered for the spring semester the university's main purpose was education—not social action.

President Clark said the university must take appropriate action when student activities, lawful or unlawful, conflict with the learning process.

Thomas Peete, 21, and Willie Bradford, 22, both of Shreveport, and D'Army Bailey, 20, Memphis, Tenn., said in their attempt to register they represented about 45 students the university barred.

U.S. Jones, dean of men, told the three they couldn't return for the second semester under any circumstances. He said they were trespassing and had a campus security guard escort them from the campus as sheriff's deputies looked on.

The students, members of the Congress of Racial Equality, returned to their Baton Rouge hotel without further incident to plan their next actions.

They told a newsman they will try to register at Louisiana State University here next week, and they called for other Southern students to cut classes beginning Monday in protest.

There were earlier indications other Negro students would seek transfer to LSU, which is segregated on the undergraduate level but has admitted Negroes to the law and graduate schools for several years.

Test On Winn Product Set

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Federal test results on a Louisiana product which was withdrawn from use as mineral filler in hot-mix asphalt concrete for paving is expected to be made known to the state highway director Monday.

The federal report on testing of anhydrite, a fine dust made from rock quarried in Winn Parish will govern Director Ray Burgess, he told members of a press conference.

The product of Winn Rock Inc., has been a point of argument between federal and state highway researchers since October.

A spokesman for the department said that Ted Dunham, wealthy supplier of highway materials and a backer of Gov. Jimmie Davis, owns an interest in the Winn Rock Inc. The spokesman also said that Ted Price, chairman of the State Highway Board, is a business associate of Dunham.

State highway researchers who tested the product say that it meets every specification. They also claim that federal testers didn't use the same grades of materials in running their first test.

The Federal Bureau of Public Roads asked the state to stop use of the product until further tests could be made. The state issued a memorandum on Jan. 16, ordering district engineers to hold up its use until the differences could be straightened out.

TODAY AT 10 A.M.

Parade Scheduled For Safety Week

A parade, sponsored by West Monroe, Neville and Ouachita Parish high schools, will be staged in the downtown business districts of The Twin Cities at 10 a.m. today in recognition of National Student Safety Week.

The parade is under the supervision of the Driver Training Instructors of the three schools, which include Buck Stewart, Chic Childress, Pat Patterson, and Dan McClure.

The parade will consist of approximately six blocks of exhibits, marchers, and floats.

W. J. Riley Jr., coordinator of the Student Safety Week activities declared that the enthusiasm and hard work that has been put into the preparation of the parade by the students "assures downtown visitors a colorful exciting spectacle."

The parade will kick-off activities which will continue throughout the week.

A special 2.1 mile driving course has been set up at Selman Field under the supervision of Police Chiefs James C. Kelly Jr., and Jeff W. Caldwell and state police Captain W. M. Kidd, for use during the competition.

Students from the three high schools will compete on this course daily between the hours of 4 and 5:30 p.m. on Saturday the course will be open to non-high school drivers who will be participating under the direction of Buster Crowley.

Emphasis will be placed on precise-timed and economical driving.

The course is divided into three units and includes 7 of a mile which should be clocked at one minute and 41 seconds, 1.4 miles which should be clocked at three minutes and 22 seconds and the completion should be five minutes and four seconds. Drivers coming within five seconds of these optimum times will receive five points at each one-third mark.

Getting People To Vote

Every time an election comes up there are numerous statements urging people to vote. They come from candidates, from newspapers and from various organizations.

Practically all the candidates say they want the biggest vote possible. About half of them are telling the truth. If the other half have analyzed the situation properly they don't really want a big turnout. Often the candidate with some special axe to grind or with a particular clique of rabid followers profits when the number of votes cast is small. That is true because he can usually get out all his votes under almost any circumstances, while the voters who see no personal advantage for themselves may stay at home if the weather or other circumstances are bad.

Just how much do we really want everybody to vote? Many legally qualified voters, when they go to the polls to cast a ballot, say ennie, meenie, minie, mo, in making their choices, not only on the candidates but on the issues. We wonder just how much their votes are worth. Of course, there are others who do even worse by figuring whether they will personally profit a few cents by voting for a certain candidate or for a certain issue. There are plenty of people who wouldn't take a dollar handout for a vote but who will sell their votes just as surely in the expectation of making a little personal gain, when they know the candidate they are voting for is not the best man for the position or the issue they are voting for is morally wrong and against fundamental Americanism in context.

The people who should really go to the polls to vote are those who have taken enough time and study to inform themselves at least to some extent on the candidates and on the issues involved.

Maybe we should start urging to go to the polls only those who know who and what they are voting for and who are honest and sincere enough to vote for what they know is right, instead of voting for the candidate or the issue that may drop an extra nickel or two in their pockets. This could include representatives of business and industry or labor who know that they might personally gain by laws that are not best for the people as a whole.

Right now, since our Americanism is threatened even more perilously from within than from without, we need to know why the American constitution was drawn up and what it means. We need to know why the constitution specifically said that, "The powers not delegated to the United States by this constitution . . . are reserved . . . to the people." We need to know why and how the federal government has seized powers not delegated to it and which, therefore, "are reserved . . . to the people" and to the states. We need to know why communism and socialism are being allowed to undermine our constitution and to destroy our freedom and the rights of the states and individuals.

Trailer-Home Taxes

Is a trailer home a house or a movable vehicle? If it is a house, why should it not be subject to the same sort of taxes that are levied against other homes?

These questions have been raised by the Shelby County, Tenn., tax collector. He thinks trailers that are used as homes should be taxed as such.

There are still trailers which are used for a type of camping. Still others are used only for traveling or hauling. Many trailers are a special type of home, rarely moved and then by use of a specialized truck. People can't tie these trailers onto the rear of their cars individuals. We need to know why some of our highest government officials are aiding in this destruction. One of the answers is that the people have not taken the right to vote seriously enough and have often sold their birthright for a mess of pottage.

There are many national and state organizations which are now working for the preservation of our constitution and of fundamental Americanism. About the only way in which these organizations can work is to train the people in right thinking, so that when they go to the polls they will have a definite idea of how they should vote. Among the national organizations working to preserve patriotism and against the infiltration of destructive outside influences is the Daughters of the American Revolution. The Louisiana State Sovereignty Commission is also working for constitutional government and for the free American way of life as contemplated under that constitution.

In a letter, the sovereignty commission said in part:

"The Louisiana Sovereignty Commission believes one of the best ways of preserving the American way of life is to keep the public informed on attempts to destroy that tradition.

"We also believe we owe it particularly to our young people, our citizens of tomorrow, to alert them to efforts being made to weaken the Americanism we must count on them to preserve."

In furtherance of this program, the commission has prepared a cartoon booklet on "Constitutional Government." This booklet was found to be popular and effective, as well as comparatively inexpensive.

Initial distribution of the booklet will be made, through the Louisiana department of education, to high school seniors and juniors. Some copies will be distributed to libraries and placed in other locations where they will be available to both young and adult readers.

It is virtually certain that the voters of tomorrow will be generally more educated than those of today and that they will make some sort of study of the candidates and the issues. It is therefore all the more important that they have available to them information which will point out the states and individuals. Only in this way can we preserve our constitution and these freedoms.

Meanwhile, if we say it is the duty of every legally qualified voter to cast a ballot, we should say even more strongly that it is his duty first to consider which candidates and which issues will do most to preserve the freedom of the people and the individual states. In this connection, we know that most so-called "liberal" candidates are in favor of socialism and that they are in favor of abolishing the constitution insofar as its guarantees of the rights of states and individuals are concerned. When an election comes up, vote but first know why you will vote the way you do, and let that reason be unselfish.

In what are called trailer parks or camps, little subdivisions of these homes which are only technically mobile and which have full water, sewer and electric service, have become popular. A whole way of life has developed around these homes with rarely used wheels.

The question of whether homes with wheels should be exempted from taxes while other homes are required to pay those levies seems worth considering. People in these homes expect such services as police and fire protection and public schools so the contention that they should pay taxes seems valid.

Refugee Problem In Cuba

More Than 500 Workers Permitted To Make Homes Inside Steel-Fenced Barricade At U.S. Base

An explosive Cuban refugee problem is building up inside the strategic U. S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

More than 500 of the 3,500 Cuban workers employed at the base are being permitted to make their homes inside the steel-fenced barricade that is guarded by tank-supported U. S. Marines.

This political asylum is being granted these anti-Castro Cubans by Rear Admiral Edward J. O'Donnell, U. S. commander at the base, with the full backing of superiors in Washington.

He is extending this temporary haven to these workers, many of whom fear for their lives, as they would be arrested and jailed by Castro's Communist government if they tried to return to their homes and families.

Asylum is also being given to another hundred Cubans, who made the daring escape from Communism by scaling the fence that surrounds the naval installation.

These Cuban defectors are coming over that fence at the rate of 10 to 12 a week despite drastic new measures by Castro's militia to try to stop the escapes.

The explosive possibilities of this growing refugee problem are causing deep concern at the highest level of government here as well as among military officers at Guantanamo Bay.

Top Navy officials are flatly warning that Castro, who is keeping an ominous silence, will soon try to use the refugee issue to cause an international incident by taking the matter to the United Nations.

To back up this warning, these officials cite an intelligence report that Castro is now sounding out the Afro-Asian bloc at the United Nations on whether they would support a Cuban charge the U. S. is harboring war criminals at the base.

While these officials believe that it will be easy for this country to show up these allegations as completely phony, they want the State Department to start now preparing a strong counter-case against Castro and his denial of human rights in Cuba.

Also, they favor a policy of quietly moving to the U. S. from the base any of the Cuban refugees that wish to leave the island. At present, the State Department is opposing the use of Guantanamo as a refugee escape hatch. They are taking the position that such a policy might give Castro a legal argument to void this country's 99-year lease on the base.

TENSE SITUATION — So tense is the situation at Guantanamo that Admiral O'Donnell ordered a general alert this week during the Organization of American States meeting at Punta Del Este, Uruguay, on Cuba.

The alert followed word from the Pentagon that Castro might try to stage an incident at the base during the conference in an effort to discredit the U. S.

Since taking office, President Kennedy has adopted the policy for Guantanamo that President Eisenhower laid down on November 1, 1960.

This policy makes it clear that the U. S. will take "whatever steps may be appropriate" to defend the base. Also, that the U. S. will not agree to abrogation or modification of the treaty assigning it the right to maintain a base at Guantanamo.

The treaty dates from 1903, after the Spanish-American war, in which the U. S. liberated Cuba from Spanish rule.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff are urging President Kennedy to make a similar declaration of policy in public so that Castro will have a clear understanding that the U. S. is ready to use force to defend the base.

They take the position that the "intimate relations" between Cuba and the Sino-Soviet bloc has increased the importance of the base to the defense of the Western Hemisphere.

In one study, the J. C. S. point out that the base would make an ideal submarine center for the Soviets underwater operations along the coasts of North and South America.

MORE ON CUBA — The Soviet Union has turned over two subchasers to Cuba. These speedy craft are believed to be the first of a fleet of ten ships that Soviet Premier Khrushchev has promised to give Castro . . . The base at Guantanamo is to Castro what Hong Kong is to the Chinese Communists. Cubans working at the base were forced by the Castro regime to turn over 90 per cent of their $6 million earnings in 1961 in exchange for Cuban pesos . . . Castro's militia is increasing patrols near the Guantanamo base, setting up machine gun posts every 200 yards . . . A road is being constructed all along the steel-fence at the base by Castro forces so that they can spot defectors trying to reach the base.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Blood In Urine

Serious Trouble Frequently Occurs When There Is Not Pain

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a 45-year-old businessman. I have felt perfectly healthy until a few weeks ago when I passed blood in my urine. It has occurred about four times since then. As there is no pain whatsoever, I haven't consulted a doctor. Besides, he might advise a cystoscopic examination — and I don't look forward to that. Will you advise? — Mr. Y.

COMMENT: Don't be influenced by the absence of pain. Bleeding can occur due to serious trouble and not cause any pain at all. There have been some cases of bleeding for which the cause was never found. The patient had urinary bleeding once or twice and never had any symptoms again. But in most cases, bleeding is like the red flag which warns of danger.

The careful doctor makes his cystoscopic days in such a way there is less pain for the patient than in days gone by. This examination is essential by a trained urologist. For it is important that he rule out dozens of possible causes.

To mention a few: tumor or stone in the kidney; polycystic disease of the kidney; chronic glomerulonephritis; stone, tumor or stricture in the ureter; the connective tube between kidney and bladder; cystitis, (inflammation of the urinary bladder); stone or tumor in the bladder; enlargement or tumor in the prostate gland; urinary infection or tuberculosis; blood diseases — and many other conditions.

I hope I haven't frightened you with this imposing list of conditions, but I think you ought to know that you had better get to your doctor early. Procrastination will get you nowhere.

ACUTE APPENDICITIS NOT ALWAYS TYPICAL
I recall a number of cases of acute appendicitis that became deadly ill (some actually dying) because the patient came to the doctor too late. And you couldn't blame the patient because the symptoms were so unlike those found in the typical case.

Most people become suspicious of appendicitis and call the doctor early when the patient has generalized abdominal pain which localizes in the lower right side and if there is nausea and vomiting, fever, rapid pulse and tenderness when a finger presses in the painful region.

But there are many cases that don't run true to form. Especially those that occur in infants, in the elderly and during pregnancy. Remember that acute appendicitis may be missed in the young because we often blame their discomforts on "green apples," worms, overeating, and on bladder trouble.

In many borderline cases a good surgeon will decide to operate rather than take the chance of overlooking an acute attack with the possibility of peritonitis. In the elderly, there may not be acute pain, vomiting and other typical symptoms during the acute attack. They may complain only of vague abdominal distress, diarrhea; and of a pain that does not seem limited to the right lower abdomen.

It always pays to be suspicious of the older patient who "just isn't feeling well." Even if he has no fever or typical symptoms it's always wise to consider the possibility of acute appendicitis (the patient may even have pneumonia without fever).

You can see how appendicitis might be overlooked in the pregnant woman who is already uncomfortable with nausea, vomiting and vague pains in the abdomen.

THE ALMANAC

By United Press International

Today is Saturday, January 27 the 27th day of the year with 338 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

There are no morning or evening stars.

On this day in history: In 1832, the creator of the immortal "Alice in Wonderland," Lewis Carroll, was born.

In 1880, a patent for an electric incandescent lamp was granted to Thomas Edison of Menlo Park, N.J.

In 1888, the National Geographic Society was founded in Washington.

In 1943, the United States 8th Air Force staged the first all-American air raid on Germany in broad daylight.

A thought for the day: American essayist and poet Ralph Waldo Emerson once said: "A man is a bundle of relations, a knot of roots, whose flower and fruitage is the world."

WASHINGTON SHORTS

ROMNEY'S PLANS — Republicans politicians now regard it as certain that George Romney, Detroit automobile man, will seek the nomination for Governor of Michigan in 1962, and if successful will enter the 1964 quest for G.O.P. Presidential nomination. Most Constitutional experts think the fact that Romney was born in Mexico, of American parents, would not be a bar to his holding the office of President. Romney is a member of the Mormon church.

The difficulty with a free alliance such as NATO is that it can become meaningless. For instance Red China is an enemy of NATO — probably the principal enemy of NATO and certainly the principal enemy of the United States. Its policy is for the Soviet Universal State to make war on the Western world. Nevertheless, Great Britain sells planes to Red China; Canada and Australia sell wheat to Red China.

In a word, our allies prolong the existence of our enemy. These sales are suicidal and apparently there is nothing we can do about it because we do not have a real alliance; we have a sort of affiliation in which each country does as it pleases no matter what harm it may do to any other member of the Alliance.

Of course, the French would say that we have not supported each twist of French policy in Algeria; the Netherlands can say that we weakened Netherlands in Indonesia (the Dutch East Indies); Portugal can say that we withheld help in Goa, and so on. In fact, each ally with justice can complain against every member of the alliance, establishing without doubt that NATO is not an alliance any more than the United Nations is a parliament of man.

Red China purchased six Vickers Viscount airplanes last year and it is now reported that the Handley Page Company is negotiating Herald airplanes. Also the Rootes Group is reported to have sold 130 trucks to Red China. Business is business.

The reason given for British consent to these transactions is that their cancellation would establish anti-American agitation among laborers in Great Britain, the British worker not giving a tinker's damn about the alliance at the present time but only seeking jobs. It is difficult to believe that the British worker is as stupid as the leaders of the Labour Party, but politicians try not to take a chance and as the British government wants no harm to come to Anglo-American relations, it bends itself to what it assumes is British public opinion, just as our politicians pay attention to the so-called polls which tell them little of the truth of American public opinion.

The United States was consulted about the sale. Senator Kenneth B. Keating of New York asked the State Department about these transactions and received a very frank answer, the gist of which is that Great Britain and Red China maintain diplomatic relations and therefore engage in commercial relations.

But what about NATO? What about the North Atlantic Alliance? What becomes of the future of these countries? What about the secrecy of airplane equipment, radar, etc., with regard to which there is an exchange between Great Britain and this country?

The complication in all this is that whereas a Soviet alliance is total, the parties to it accepting their orders from the Kremlin, NATO is a free alliance, the parties to it making their own decisions with regard to many matters. For instance, it cannot be said that there is a NATO policy regarding Red China or a NATO policy regarding Algeria or Goa or any fundamental relationship.

There is both strength and weakness in this independence of view. The loss of sovereignty within NATO cannot be developed satisfactorily. Our people would not stand for it for a minute, nor would the British or the French. We actually criticize the Soviet Universal State and call the Soviet nations slave states.

Do we want our countries to be slave states? If so, to whom?

Involved in all this is the question of freedom, of free choice, of free sovereignty. We oppose what Soviet Russia has done in East Germany, but would we do the same in Great Britain or France? Undoubtedly there are some who subconsciously would prefer the world be divided in two, with Soviet-Russia and the United States the two great powers holding all others in thrall. But they would also maintain free sovereignty and nationalism. The conflict of ideas and arrangements does not appear to them to be a conflict at all. It is just a coincidence. But it is such coincidences which have made wars as long as there has been history. The greatest of current statesmanship in the Western world is that we have learned not to press too hard, not to force an alliance to become a good reason for enmity.

Joe Shell Vote

Republican Thinks He Can Knock Off Both Nixon And Brown

AIRBORNE IN CALIFORNIA — In San Diego high school and the University of Southern California, Joe Shell was consistently president of his classes and clubs, captain of the football teams, and twice a Rose Bowl winner half-back.

Today, at 43, limber and gregarious, loaded with confidence, charm and conviction, Shell is in his fifth term as California Assemblyman from the 58th Los Angeles District, in his third term as Republican floor leader, and is one of the three candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. To continue, the winning streak which his life so far has been, Shell must defeat Richard Nixon, and Harold Powers in the June primary, and knock off Gov. "Pat" Brown in the November election. He is sure he can do it because the spirit of the times is with him.

"We're having a conservative explosion out here," Shell told me while the single-engine Beechcraft, which he has flown thus far between 360-some speeches and appearances, waited like a Western hero's horse to gallop him to the next encounter. "Nobody who apologizes for being a conservative is going to win in California. People know I'm a man of conviction, whatever else, and they ask 'What's Nixon?' They haven't forgotten his sell-out meeting with Rockefeller just before the 1960 convention."

For any Republican to win in California, he will need to take about half of the 1.3 million registered voters by which Democrats exceed Republicans. Nixon says he will do this by going Left of the GOP — Shell by going Right of the Democrats. Nixon has a splendid vision of a California governor being an oracular statesman of national and world affairs — Shell has a homely concept of the governorship as an unglamorous, absorbing job to rescue the State from bankruptcy and worse.

"Basic socialism — not liberalism any more," Shell brands the Sacramento government. "I'm running for Governor to get that blue executive pencil in my hand."

California law gives the Governor an item veto so that he can chop out legislative provisions which in recent years have raised State bureaucratic employment by 30 per cent and expenditures by 35 per cent. The blue pencil is a fiery sword against pressure groups, something that President Eisenhower yearned for in the years he worked with a Democratic Congress.

The only Republican candidate now in public office, Shell is running on a record of always voting for economy, voluntary Labor unions, compulsory Loyalty oaths. While he doesn't care to go out on "tangents" with the John Birch Society, he says the member whom he knows are "fine, solid constructive citizens." He says he's read the JBS Blue Book while most people have only read rumors about it. "What I found there is anti-Communism, and I'm for that. But I'm no freak, or else I wouldn't be chosen as majority floor leader."

DEATHS

Laura Ann Rogers

RUSTON (Special) — Funeral services for Laura Ann Rogers, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Rogers of Dubach, were scheduled to be held 10 a.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church of Dubach with the Rev. D. A. Doughty, pastor, officiating.

The child died Thursday night in a Ruston hospital following a short illness.

Burial will be in Hamilton Memorial Cemetery under direction of Spears Funeral Home of Ruston.

Surviving in addition to the parents, are a sister, Phyllis Jean Rogers, Dubach; three brothers, Jimmy, Benji and Randie, all of Dubach; paternal grandfather, B. C. Rogers of Ruston and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Colvin of Dubach.

Road Covered For Traffic

Faced by an impassable road on Berg Jones Lane south of Monroe, Ouachita Parish began placing heavy steel pierced plank on the mud-sodden thoroughfare Friday.

Parish Engineer Wayne Huckaby said about 120 feet of plank was laid, "not enough to completely remedy the situation."

"We put it in the worst place. Several thousand feet of the road are in bad condition," he commented.

The road, along with other parish roads, was damaged by the recent ice and snow.

At Friday afternoon's Police Jury purchasing committee meeting, jurors voted to buy $900 worth of the steel equipment, which is the same as that used at primary airfields, oil rigs and to prevent Army tanks from sticking in mud.

Huckaby was uncertain whether enough planking could be found for the job.

M. W. Montgomery, jury president, pointed out, "Everything else we put on there sinks. We've been hauling bricks and such in there all this time (since the freeze of January 9-12) and couldn't do anything with it."

"The steel pierced plank is the cheapest way we could do it," Berg Jones Lane sustained the worst damage of any parish road during the freeze.

Man Is Booked On DWI Charge

A 29-year-old Fairbanks man was booked last night by Monroe police with driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages after he was involved in a three-car collision at the intersection of DeSiard and 23rd Streets.

Charged at police headquarters at 8:40 p.m. was Joseph Leo Elie who was apprehended at the site of the crash. Elie rammed into the rear of another automobile, knocking into the rear of a third vehicle which was stopped at the intersection.

Cheniere Law Protects Public -Montgomery

"We're trying to protect the people who use the park as a recreation area — we don't want anything destroyed, people or anything else," said Ouachita Police Jury President M. W. Montgomery Friday, in clarifying the new Cheniere Lake ordinance.

The ordinance, passed by a jury vote of 13 to one, provides that no firearms, weapons or any other "instruments of danger of damage to humans or property" will be permitted on or near Cheniere Lake or adjacent land owned by the parish.

The only time this restriction will be lifted is during legal duck hunting periods. Sportsmen may hunt ducks from a licensed blind.

Montgomery said that a Wildlife Unit official asked the jury to pass the ordinance.

He explained the safety factor: "If people are out on the lake, fishing, and hunters were to start shooting from boats and banks, someone could get hurt."

The recently-enacted ordinance provides that the Cheniere Lake Area and adjacent parish property "shall be used for the promotion of general welfare, health and safety of the public."

It prohibits "misuse, abuse or destruction of property of Ouachita Parish located thereon by any person or persons at any time."

Violation of the ordinance carries a fine of $50 maximum, or 30 days in jail, or both.

Mrs. Roberson, 76, Dies Here; Rites Pending

2 Negroes Fined In City Court Activity Friday

Drawing fines of $200 or 60 days confinement Friday in Monroe city court were two Negroes — one of Monroe, the other of Choudrant.

They were identified as Videll Hill, 37, Route 1, box 126, Choudrant, and Theo Hill, 18, Route 1, box 43, Monroe. Both were convicted of theft.

Theft charges were discharged against another Monroe Negro, Melvin Mays, 28, 806 Wood St.

Negro Haynes Jenkins, 20, of 716 Breard, was fined $150 or 60 days for receiving stolen goods.

Nolled prossed were charges of simple battery against Lorena Reese, 31, 809 S. 9th St. The same was true of charges alleging illegal use of a weapon against 61-year-old Negro, A. Heckard, 411 S. 9th.

Receiving a 60-day suspended sentence for vagrancy was Lois Watkins, 18, for whom no address was known.

Conviction of public drunkenness resulted in fines of $25 or 25 days for Willie Knox, 44, of 4506 Jackson St., and Roy Byers, 52, of Litro.

Two persons were fined $25 or 25 days for reckless driving, while one case of the same offense was suspended and another nolled prossed.

A $17 bond was forfeited for speeding, as was a $5 bond for running a stop sign.

Negro Hit By Car Thursday

Being treated yesterday at St. Francis Hospital for head lacerations was a five-year-old Negro girl, Carolyn Ann Drake, who was struck Thursday in West Monroe by a truck on North Seventh St., near the Catholic school.

Injuries to the child, whose address was listed as 4 Short North Seventh St., were considered relatively minor but she was admitted for treatment after being rushed to the hospital by Kilpatrick ambulance.

Driver of the truck, 32 year old P. G. Zufall, 307 McGuire St., West Monroe, told officers the accident was unavoidable and that the child had darted into his path from the side of the street.

No charges were filed.

Floridan Held For Kentucky Police Officials

A 26-year-old Florida man was being held Friday by parish law officers for authorities in Lexington, Ky., where he is wanted for auto theft.

Known under several aliases, the sheriff's department has identified the man as Allen John Henry Arthur Phillip McBain, of 109 N. E. 8th St. in Homestead, Fla.

McBain was apprehended early Friday morning by state police and charged with driving with an expired driver's license. He was in a 1962 model automobile listed as stolen in Kentucky.

Sheriff's department fingerprint records later revealed that McBain was wanted for breaking and entering and larceny, as well, in Eastport, Me.

He is known in other parts of the country as Eric Otto Bismark, the name under which he was first booked here, Albert Hector, Allen John Arthur, Henry McBain and Allin McBain, according to officers.

Chief Criminal Deputy Frank Kirby praised the work of sheriff's identification officer Warren Sievers in subsequent identification on McBain. Sievers maintains records listing pertinent information on approximately 20,000 persons and including data on an estimated 7500 fugitives now being actively sought across the country.

Court Activity Light Friday In West Monroe

Light activity Friday in West Monroe municipal court was confined largely to minor traffic violations.

In the only two cases apart from traffic court, Judge John McCormick oversaw formal withdrawal of theft charges against a 24-year-old West Monroe woman, Mrs. Richard Roy, 106 S. 3rd St., and a decision not to prosecute Mrs. James T. Singer, 205 Conrad St., allegedly for allowing a biting dog to roam at large.

A bond of $20.50 was forfeited for speeding by Godfrey T. Whitten, 24, of 118 Bradley Dr. Forfeiting bonds of $5.50 for running red light were Ralph D. Terry, 46, Route 3, box 262B, West Monroe; Frank Eason, 44, 3401 Loop Road, Monroe; Charles Ducote, 23, 241 St. George Ave., New Orleans; and John B. Stokes, 38, of Palatka, Fla.

Fined $5.50 for the same offense was Nolan D. Cromwell, 21, Route 2, Eros.

Ancient City Is Discovered In Nile Valley

CAIRO (UPI)—A British archaeological expedition has discovered an ancient city in the Nile Valley which may lead to the rewriting of history books, the expedition's leader said Friday.

Prof. Walter Emery of London University said his team has uncovered "a town or settlement" which dates back at least to 2,600 B.C.—the time of the pyramid builders.

The city was found near Bohen, about 210 miles south of Aswan in the Nubia stretch of the Nile Valley.

"We will have to have another look at our history books and write some more," Emery told United Press International.

He said until now it was believed that although Egyptians sent trading expeditions to Nubia in early times, their conquest and colonization did not take place before the 12th Dynasty — 2,000 B.C.

"But we found evidence that the Egyptians penetrated established settlements at least 600 years earlier," Emery said.

Former Senator Said Serious

The condition of W. C. Feazel of West Monroe and Shreveport was reported as serious Friday. The former U.S. Senator is undergoing treatment at the Baptist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

He is prominent in north Louisiana oil and gas operations and served as interim Senate appointment after the death of the late Sen. John Overton.

His family left this week to be with him in Memphis.

OAS CONFERENCE

Castro Censure Hopes Are Dim

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—The seven-nation bloc demanding a slow, soft settlement of the Cuban communism issue recruited Uruguay's support Friday and dimmed prospects for adoption of a stern four-point program advocated by the United States.

Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Marxist-Leninist regime may yet get through deliberations of the inter-American foreign ministers conference here with little more than a slap on the wrist for its importation and promotion of communism in the Western Hemisphere.

The smallest and one of the most advanced nations in South America, Uruguay is the conference's host. The decision to switch was voted by Uruguay's nine-member government council in Montevideo.

Uruguayan delegates at this Atlantic resort were instructed to approve the expulsion of Cuba from the Organization of American States and any other measures, only if they are acceptable to Brazil, Argentina, Mexico, Chile, Bolivia, Ecuador and Haiti.

A two-thirds vote is required for action in the 21-nation conference, which includes Cuba. Assuming the go-slow group held fast, advocates of strong penalties could gain only 12 votes at best.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and his advisers held a series of secret sessions with the go-slow leaders.

The Scorecard

As the NCAA and AAU lock horns in a death struggle for power over amateur track and field in the U. S. it becomes apparent that the average fan, as in baseball and football, can't tell the contestants without a program. In this case, it appears he can't tell what they are trying to do without a program, either.

The following is a very brief outline attempting to identify the major participants and explain something of what they are trying to do.

First there is the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the administrative organization in athletics for major colleges and universities and the deservent body.

According to the NCAA the AAU is dictatorial and inadequate. The NCAA maintains it has only a minimal voice in the affairs of the AAU and proposes the acceptance of new federations for track and field, etc.

The insurgent group in the NCAA is the National Collegiate Track Coaches Association.

The U.S. Track and Field Federation is the name chosen by track coaches for the new organization to replace the AAU.

For Safety

Rule revisions made to promote player safety in high school football at the National Football Rules Committee meeting in St. Louis this month include:

Requirements that all players wear a mouth and tooth protector. Prohibiting blockers from making contact with a hand or arm above an opponent's shoulder or whipping his forearm or elbow so that it is moving faster than his body at the time of contact.

Making it illegal for a player to lock his hands and requiring the hand to be in advance of the elbow at the time of contact.

In addition, officials are to enforce the three-minute warm-up period prior to each half, penalize any piling on of a player lying on the ground and infractions of grasping, holding or twisting of face guards.

Speaking at the meeting, was Dr. Allen Ryan, past chairman of the American Medical Association's committee on the medical aspects of sports.

Dr. Ryan contended that the widespread opinion favors improvements in football helmets. He personally urged modification of the face guard to eliminate its use as an offense weapon and a defensive weapon.

State Tournament

The state basketball tournament will be held in Shreveport March 8-10. District champions must be named in the three A classes by Feb. 24. District winners in Class B and C are to be decided by Feb. 17.

First round play in AAA is Feb. 27, with quarterfinals March 2 and semi-final and final action in the state meet.

In class AA and A boys and girls bi-district games are Feb. 27 and quarterfinals March 2. Boys semi-finals and finals are in the state tournament, while girls semi-finals are in the state meet.

The Snarl

Southeastern's Lions really threw the Gulf State Conference basketball race into a snarl by upsetting Northwestern 81-75 in Hammond the other night. The loss, first for USL in conference play, dropped the Bulldogs to 3-1 and into a tie with Northeast State for first place.

The Lions tackle McNeese at home in their next GSC engagement, then host Northeast's Indians. At present, no team is out of the race completely and the final best mark could be anything from one to three losses. Only one thing is certain, the winner won't be undefeated.

DIFFERS WITH TULANE

Mississippi State Not Conceding Title

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP) — Coach Babe McCarthy of Mississippi State refused to concede an inch Friday to Kentucky in the Southeastern Conference race, and took issue with another SEC basketball coach.

McCarthy differed with Tulane coach Cliff Wells, who said Thursday the big battle in the SEC race is for second place, observing that Kentucky—for many reasons—just about had the title clinched.

"I can't speak for the rest of the schools," said McCarthy, whose Bulldogs are the nation's 10th ranked team in the latest Associated Press poll, "but Mississippi State is not conceding the title to anyone until we are mathematically out of the race."

At a meeting of the New Orleans Basketball Writers Association Thursday, Wells said Kentucky's talent coupled with a most favorable home schedule made the Wildcats prohibitive favorites.

He observed that Kentucky plays the strongest teams in the SEC—Mississippi State, Louisiana State and his own Tulane squad—at Lexington and meets them only once.

But State, LSU and Tulane all meet on a home-and-home basis other around, Kentucky can really make time.

McCarthy admitted that Kentucky had a good ball club, but added he believes Auburn and Florida will challenge the Wildcats when they leave Lexington for these important road games.

While on the subject of road games, McCarthy said Kentucky plays 16 of its 24 games at Lexington. And he strongly advocated ization to replace the AAU.

The supreme power in the lineup is the International Amateur Athletic Federation. Made up of 100 countries, this group makes the rules for international competition and will ultimately decide whether the AAU or USTFF will represent this country in international competition.

Last, but not least, is the 74-year-old Amateur Athletic Union, the defendant and major power for U.S. amateur athletics nationally and internationally.

Counter charges by the AAU are that the NCAA is lax in maintaining amateur standards for college athletes and in adopting international rules, to the detriment of our international competition.

Whip-Armed Pro Retains SF Lead

By JACK STEVENSON SAN FRANCISCO (AP)

National Open champion Gene Littler fired his second straight great sub-par round with a 68 Friday and held the lead in the $50,000 San Francisco International Golf Tournament by five strokes with 133 at the midway point.

The whip-armed 31-year-old pro from San Diego did not go over par until he three-putted the 18th green. His iron game was straight and true. Two of his birdies came on short putts and the others on 15-footers on the seventh and 13th.

Great approach shots kept bumpy greens from hurting his score on the par 36-35-71 Harding Park Municipal Course.

"I'm still putting low, but every green is so much different I hardly know how to hit them. The only difference between yesterday, '65 and today was the last hole," he said. "The greens vary in speed and it's awfully tough to judge the roll."

At 133 came young Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., veteran Billy Maxwell, the former Texan now playing out of Las Vegas, Nev., and Tommy Jacobs of Bermuda Dunes, Calif.

Maxwell clouted an eagle three on the final hole for a 68. It marked the second straight day Billy has eagled the 310-yard 18th hole. He sank a 100-foot pitch for his three Friday. A wedge from 75 yards out did it Thursday.

Lema and Jacobs had 70s Friday.

Bunched at 139 at the 36-hole point in this 72-hole event were Bob Rosburg with a 69, Bill Casper, 70; Don Fairfield, 71; Bob Harris, 68; Tommy Aaron, 71, and Eric Monti, 71.

Veteran Monty Furgol, who entered the round just two strokes off Littler's pace, faded to a 75 and a 142 total.

Nine golfers were grouped at 140 including the day's best scorer, Bill Collins, who carded a 66 in Littler's threesome but started with a 74. Doug Ford, winner of the Bing Crosby tournament Monday, also was at 140 with a 72 this sunny day.

Some of the big name golfers finished down the list but still high enough to survive the cut that left only the 90 leading pros and 10 amateurs in Saturday's third round.

It took a score of 148 or better for a pro to stay in.

Interest centered on Littler. A huge portion of the crowd of 15,000 followed him as he played what he called his best golf since winning the U.S. Open at Detroit's Oakland Hills last June 17. He hasn't won since, but his widening lead threatened a runaway here.

Arnold Palmer, who has a 70-72-142, termed Littler's rounds "unbelievable—I don't know how he is doing it."

Littler started his birdie round with a 6-foot putt at the second hole. He had another with a 4-footer at the fifth. At the seventh came his first 15-footer. The other came at the 12th.

IN MISSISSIPPI, TEXAS

NLSC Cagers, Thinclads Will See Action Tonight

Northeast State athletes will be in action against strong competition in two states tonight when the school's basketball team meets Mississippi State in Starkville, Miss., and three Indian trackmen participate in the Lubbock Indoor Invitational Track and Field Meet in Lubbock, Tex.

Dave Styron is scheduled to run the 60-yard dash, Don Styron to run the 60-yard high hurdles and John Pennel is slated to pole vault in the Lubbock meet. Dave Styron won the 60-yard dash in the Bluebonnet Indoor Meet in Houston earlier this month in 6.2 while Pennel tied for second in the same meet's pole vault with a 15-4 effort. Don Styron did not run in Houston but finished third in the 120-yard high hurdles in the Sugar Bowl Meet Dec. 31.

Northeast's basketballers, co-leaders of the Gulf States Conference, will be decided underdogs in their contest with Mississippi State, 1961 champion of the Southeastern Conference and currently in third place in that league.

Coach Lenny Fant's Indians gained a share of the GSC lead Wednesday night when Southeastern knocked off erstwhile leader Southwestern, 81-75. The defeat was the first in the league for Southwestern and left the Bulldogs with a 3-1 GSC mark, the same as Northeast's conference record.

Northeast is now 8-5 for the season, Mississippi State, the 10th ranked team in the nation, is 13-1 for the campaign, having lost only to Vanderbilt, 100-86. Babe

McCarthy's State five are 4-1 in the SEC.

In comparative scores, State has an edge. The Bulldogs beat Southeastern by 24 points while Northeast downed the same club by 12. State scored a 23-point victory over Louisiana Tech while Northeast dropped the Techmen by one point in overtime. MSU routed Delta State by 29 points while the Indians divided two with the Statesmen, losing by three points on the road and winning by 29 at home.

State will probably start Leland Mitchell (6-4) and Joe Dan Gold (6-4) at forwards, Stand Brinker (6-5) at center and W. D. "Red" Stroud (6-4) and Jack Berkshire (6-0) at the guards.

Mitchell and Stroud, both juniors, are the leading point makers, Mitchell averaging 17.0 points a game and Stroud 16.4. Gold is averaging 11.9, Brinker 8.0 and Berkshire 4.8.

Gene Chatham (6-7) and Doug

Hutton, a 5-10 sophomore who can dunk the ball a la Chamberlain, are the leading Bulldogs subs. Chatham is averaging 4.0 and Hutton 8.6. Mitchell and Gold are the teams leading rebounders with 124 apiece.

Northeast will open with Robert Cook (6-5) at center, Jimmy Walker (6-4) and Bob Groves (6-2) at forwards and Lanny Johnson (6-1) and Stuart Toms (5-11) at guards.

Johnson is the leading scorer in the GSC with a 20.1 average. Walker is averaging 12.9, Cook 7.5, Toms 6.9 and Groves 5.4. Cook leads the team in rebounds with a 10.1 average and Walker is second with 8.3.

Dave Styron is expected to again meet ace sprinter Ralph Alsopugh of the Austin Athletic Club in the Lubbock track meet. Dave has divided a pair of meetings with Alsopugh this season, losing in the century at the Sugar Bowl and winning the 60 at Houston.

"Dave looked real good in Houston for an early season meet," Coach Bob Groseclose says. "His 6.2 time was his best on the boards. He ran a 6.1 in doors in 1960 but that was on clay. Weather prevented him from working out very often prior to the Bluebonnet meet and I believe he could have shaved one-tenth of a second off his time with more work. I think he's got a fine year ahead of him."

The Styrons and Pennel are scheduled for three more indoor meets before Northeast's outdoor season begins in March.

Long Checking Into Recruiting At West Point

WASHINGTON (Special) — Sen. Russell B. Long ordered his staff Friday to find out to what extent West Point is recruiting football players under a "wild card" system of selecting cadets.

Long angered over the military academy's hiring of Coach Paul Dietzel away from the Senator's alma mater, Louisiana, State University, said the move is an attempt to block a bill that broadens West Point's football recruiting still further.

The measure which Long branded as "strictly the West Point football team bill" would permit the Secretary of Army to go outside the normal system of appointing cadets within each congressional district. A certain number of cadets could be appointed "at large" and in Long's view, these would mostly be athletic prospects.

The bill is now pending before the Senate armed services committee. It has already passed the House.

Lenny Yochim New Kansas City Scout

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Lenny Yochim, former pitcher for the Pittsburgh Pirates, was signed Friday as a scout by the Kansas City Athletics.

The 33-year-old Yochim, who lives in New Orleans, will be assigned to Mississippi, Louisiana, Southern Arkansas and Southern Texas.

Eight Schools Seek Franklin Parish Crowns

WINNSBORO, La. (Special) — Winnsboro High School will host the annual Franklin Parish Basketball Tournament next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Boys and girls' teams from the eight parish high schools will be in competition for parish championship trophies.

Girls' games will be on Thursday, and semi-finals and finals are slated for Saturday.

Tournament officials will be Buck Hollis, Bud Johnston and Billy Joe Lyles.

The girls schedule Thursday is Crowville vs. Wisner, 4:30 p.m.; Baskin vs. Fort Necessity, 5:45; Ogden vs. Central, 7; and Winnsboro vs. Gilbert at 8:15.

Boys' games Friday are Baskin vs. Crowville, 4:30 p.m.; Central vs. Gilbert, 5:45; Wisner vs. Winnsboro, 7; and Fort Necessity vs. Ogden, 8:15.

On Saturday the girls' semi-finals will be at 10 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. The boys' semi-finals will be at 11:15 a.m. and 1:45 p.m. The girls' final will start at 7 p.m. and the boys' final will get underway at 8:15.

GUINN GETS 21

Ouachita Bashes Winnsboro, 71-38

Big Carl Guinn dumped in 21 points in his second game of the season to pace the resurging Ouachita High Lions to a smashing 71-38 basketball victory over Winnsboro high school here last night.

Guinn, who was ineligible for varsity competition until this week, scored 24 points against arch rival Neville High Thursday night in his first game.

Last night, the Lions, behind Guinn and a 16-point assist from James Edgar, opened up in the final three quarters to completely subdue the visiting Tigers.

Winnsboro, which got a 22-point effort from James McLe-more, started fast and led 13-9 after one quarter.

But the Tigers wilted under 19-point Ouachita efforts in the next two periods and a 24-point barrage in the final quarter.

The Lions outscored Winnsboro 19-6 in second quarter to take a 22-19 intermission advantage.

It was 47-33 after three quarters and Winnsboro fell completely apart in the final period, managing only five points to Ouachita's 24 for the final margin.

Ouachita also smashed Winnsboro in a boys B game 59-25 with Bishop scoring 14 points and Hudson 11. D. Priest got eight for the losers.

Winnsboro beat Ouachita in the girls game 55-48.

Eleven Cadets Given Bars At Northeast

Eleven Northeast Louisiana State College cadets in the Reserve Officer Training Corps received second lieutenant commissions in the U. S. Army during special ceremonies Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Biedenharn Hall Auditorium.

Major James L. Roberts, commander of the 539th transportation battalion, Louisiana National Guard, addressed the group.

Receiving commissions were George W. Bryan, Donny R. Nolan, Doyle R. Malone, Ronald L. Sanford, and James Yerger, all of Monroe; Norman A. Garlington of Dry Prong; John L. LaPrarie of Jonesville; Ronald L. Mock of Baskin; Joe A. Swendsen of Oak Ridge; Charles P. Watkins of Lake Providence; and Benjamin R. Tatum of Halls, Tenn.

Four cadets were chosen as distinguished military graduates. They were Nolan, Swendsen, Tatum, and Yerger.

Major Earl N. Trabue of the Northeast ROTC staff, acting in behalf of Lt. Col. Meridith L. Shumaker who is attending the professor of military science conference at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., presented the commissions.

Capt. George E. Sanders, assistant professor of military science, administered the oath of office. The Rev. Ernest Holloway gave the invocation.

Passman Says He Will Support Flood Controls

Louisiana's veteran Congressman Otto E. Passman, of the House Appropriations Committee, has indicated that he will support this year — "as in the past" — the full budget requests for flood control and related work in the Lower Mississippi Valley. He added, however, that — "as of the present time" — he would not be inclined to push for appropriations beyond these figures.

"The sums provided in the budget," he said, "are positively in the public interest and fully justified, with substantially favorable benefit-cost ratios. This work will bring a valuable return for every dollar invested in it."

The overall budget for construction, planning and maintenance on the Lower Mississippi River and tributaries is $70,500,000.

Included in these figures, Congressman Passman explained, is $1,775,000 for the Tensas Basin program in the Fifth Congressional District of Northeast Louisiana and adjacent Southeast Arkansas, which is an interrelated activity. This money, according to the Congressman, will provide for continuation of construction "on schedule" of the improvements on Bayou Macon, which is to be contracted shortly to within approximately 18 miles of the Louisiana-Arkansas line, in east and West Carroll Parishes; for furthering the clearing, snagging and straightening of Boeuf River, which was recently put under contract as far south as its lower reaches in Franklin and Catahoula Parishes, and for other water resources improvements in the Louisiana portion of the Basin.

Pre-construction planning funds were made available last year for a nine-foot navigation channel on the Ouachita River, in Louisiana and Arkansas, and the engineering studies, Congressman Passman said, are proceeding in an orderly manner. He expressed confidence that construction funds for the project would be appropriated "without delay at the appropriate time."

Planning funds also have been allocated for a feasibility study of a proposed port project at Lake Providence, and Congressman Passman said he had "no doubt" that this program would proceed "without a hitch" if the engineering surveys indicate a favorable ratio of benefits to costs — which, he explained, is a prerequisite for actual construction.

Other "Lower Valley" river items which the Louisiana Congressman, who is a specialist in flood control matters in the vast area which is the drainageway to the Gulf for almost half of the Nation, said would receive his major attention this year include: Mississippi River levees, 200,000; Mississippi River channel improvement, $25,500,000; continuation of the "Old River" control structure, $4,200,000; and maintenance work, $18,500,000.

With reference to the Kennedy administration's overall spending program, Congressman Passman referred to the budget as an "iffy document, which presumes much in the way of revenues, although it proposes few, if any, economies, but much extravagance. It will have to be reduced drastically, in my opinion," he asserted.

As to the $4.9 billion foreign-aid budget request, he had a one-word response: "Preposterous." Congressman Passman, the most potent foe in Congress of excessive spending for foreign aid, is chairman of the House Subcommittee on Foreign Operations Appropriations, which handles the money bill for this worldwide program.

Delta Kappa Gamma Speaker Mrs. Jack May

The Alpha Nu Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma met on Thursday evening at the Holiday Inn Hotel, where the program topic was "Mastering Languages as a Key to Better International Relations."

Members of the group were greeted by the hostesses for the evening, Miss Hermione Driskell and Mrs. Robert George.

Mrs. Jack May, a teacher at Northeast Louisiana State College in the Modern Languages Department, was the guest speaker. She gave a talk on her year's stay in Paris while attending Sorbonne University as a student in the Foreign Teachers of French School. Her visit and experiences to the historic places in this area were recalled by showing slides to the group.

The president, Mrs. Sara Ellen Bottorff, conducted a short business meeting in which she announced the future visit of Miss Mary Thornton, the state executive secretary of Delta Kappa Gamma.

The members present were Mrs. B. D. Albritton, Mrs. W. V. Bottorff, Miss Eleona Brinsmade, Miss Geneva Castles, Mrs. Wm. J. Christmas, Mrs. A. R. Dougherty, Miss Hermione Driskell, Mrs. V. B. ## New Ideas In Young Furniture

Youth is well served this year by the furniture designs for young rooms.

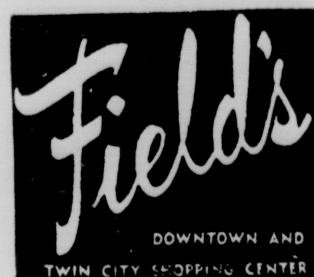

A number of designers have created groups of bedroom furniture with accompanying desks, easy chairs and small tables which will take children from about sixth grade on through college years. Several such groups are budget priced.

No longer is furniture for this age group coy or cute in design. It is as straight-forward an expression of good design, in several different themes, as any other.

Modern, simple and functional may have most appeal for the budding scientist or the hopeful young space man.

Girls are offered choices which let them decorate as frilly and ruffly or as feminine but simple as they like.

WATERCOLORS CLAIM a big share of attention at the senior art show of Mrs. Anne Arrant, left, Northeast State student, as she discusses one of her works with Mrs. J. B. Thompson and Mrs. W. D. Cotton, both of Rayville. The exhibit was held in Biedenharn Hall on the college campus.

NLSC Graduating Student Show Includes Exhibits, Works By Mrs. A. Arrant

Examples of art work done by Mrs. Anne Arrant, senior at Northeast Louisiana State College, were exhibited at a graduating student show in the student lounge of Biedenharn Hall on campus.

The afternoon event included an informal coffee hour. Mrs. Arrant, of West Monroe, is showing in her watercolors, particularly landscapes in which design reflects oriental influence. She is majoring in art education and minoring in social studies. Exhibits which the show included reflected a wide variety of work done in art classes taught by Mrs. Gregor Goethals and Edward Schutz, both of the Northeast State fine arts faculty, headed by Dean Harry M. Lemert. A broad range of media was explored, utilizing several approaches to design problems, some representative, some abstract.

Mrs. Arrant's greatest strength is shown in her watercolors, particularly landscapes in which design reflects oriental influence. She demonstrates exceptional ability in landscapes, Mrs. Goethals said. The instructor also emphasized the value of the young artist's work with mosaics.

YOUR PROBLEMS

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Her father is a prominent citizen. His parents are loved and respected by everyone in the community. Both the boy and the girl are good students and well liked. Today every one learned the truth. She is almost six months pregnant.

Afraid to face their parents they have continued to go to school. The rumors have been going around for several weeks but nobody knew for sure. Some of their friends have dropped them. I feel only pity. My heart aches for these kids who have gotten off to a terrible start.

They are only 17 and don't know which way to turn. Marriage is such a big step. They know they aren't ready for it.

Please, Ann, reemphasize the dangers of going steady. Keep pounding away on the theme that virtue is just plain common sense. Teenagers will listen to you before they will listen to their parents.

I know because I am — ALSO 17. Dear Also 17: Thank you for the compliment but I know, too, that teenagers will listen to each other before they will listen to any adult.

So I'm printing your letter as a "member of the lodge"—a teenager who knows what it's like to go to school with a couple of kids who are facing terrible trouble. Let's hope that somewhere, someone gets the message.

Dear Ann Landers: A woman who knows both my husband and me very well phoned him at his office to invite us to a party. She asked him to relay the invitation to me. I saw her that very day (before she called him) and she said nothing.

As it turned out I had to phone her to get the details. He didn't remember the date, the time, the manner of dress or the occasion. I cannot understand why she didn't call me in the first place. In fact I am burned up about it. My husband says I'm making a mountain out of a molehill. Am I? If I'm wrong, please scorch me properly. If not, please scorch her.—BY-PASSED

Dear By-Passed: Your friend is a clod. But there is nothing you can do about HER. You can, and should! enlist your husband's cooperation in case this situation should come up in the future, however.

Your husband should say "My wife makes all the social plans in our family. Please call her."

Dear Ann Landers: Something has been on my mind for a long time and I need an answer. I've been bugged for ages over this and it happens to me all the time.

Why does a guy ask a girl for her telephone number if he has no intention of using it? Don't fellows realize that when a girl gives out her phone number she expects a call? Don't they understand that a girl has feelings and that her feelings get hurt when the guy takes her number and nothing happens?

Please Ann, solve this mystery for me if you can.—MAN-HATER

Dear Man Hater: When a boy asks a girl for her telephone number he actually INTENDS to call her.

As we all know so well, the road to hell is paved with good intentions. Somehow, he never quite gets around to making the call, but this does not mean that he was feeding her a line.

Confidential to THIRD EAR: You also have a second mouth. Such information should not have been passed on as social chit-chat. You need a muzzle.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

"Dear Mrs. Eldred: I am the grandmother of two boys aged 4 and 6. I take care of them two or three times a week when their mother works. Since they first began talking, their vocabulary has included distasteful curse and swear words.

"I have spoken to their parents about it and been told to take a strap to them when they use that language. I happen to know that their father also talks this way. Knowing children are like monkeys and imitate actions and speech, I refuse to spank them as their vocabulary is really not their fault.

"It is most embarrassing to Grandpa and me when they repeat these words in the yard and in our home. What can we do?"

Mrs. B. P.

MRS. ELDRED SAYS

Four is the age when such words first creep into the child's vocabulary. They are, as you say, repeating what they have heard at home or from other children. They do not know the meaning of the words they use nor do they realize the significance of their sacrilegious curses.

What they do know is that it creates a sensation and makes them feel big and tough. This attention is satisfying. It may give them status with their playmates and creates a big furor at home.

Those who are not exposed to such language in their home will outgrow the necessity to verbally throw their weight around; but the parent must be firm in discouraging its use. Since they are in your care almost half the time, you can influence them to do as you do.

They should be told the meaning of certain so-called "dirty" words which have no place in polite conversation. If they know to what they are referring, they will hesitate to use them. Tell them that you do not take the name of the Lord in vain nor will you tolerate such language from them.

If they continue, put them in a room by themselves until they can speak decently in the presence of others. This is more effective than spanking.

Do not act too shocked or upset, but merely consistent in trying to break them of this habit. Give them a substitute such as "gosh," "gee" or "aw shucks," if these are not distasteful to you. My children used to laugh when I told them to say "Of Fudge" when they were mad.

If they say, "But Daddy uses these words," tell them that Daddy is grown up and has grown up privileges children do not have. You should not criticize the father in front of the children.

Tell the parents what you are doing and see if you can enlist the father's cooperation in curbing his language in their presence.

If you would like the leaflet "How To Be Good Parents,"

Discussion Highlights PTA Meet

Mrs. Carter Gilmore, president, presided over the Ransom Parents and Teachers Association meeting on Thursday, January 18, at 2:00 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

A panel composed of two parents: Mrs. Fletcher and Mrs. Wilkinson and two teachers: Mrs. Moreau and Mr. Hammett gave a discussion on the social life and social activities of children in school.

After the meeting adjourned, refreshments were served by the fourth grade. Room count was won by Miss Hazel McLawlin's fourth grade.

The next meeting of the P.T.A. will be a night meeting in February.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 86 to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

THIS WAS THE CIVIL WAR

By MERTON T. AKERS
United Press International

The commander-in-chief of the United States issued General War Order No. 1 on Jan. 27, 1862.

The first sentence read: "ORDERED: That the 22nd day of February 1862 be the day for a general movement of all the land and naval forces of the United States against the insurgent forces."

It was signed "Abraham Lincoln."

Special War Order No. 1 followed four days later. It read: "ORDERED: That all of the disposable force of the Army of the Potomac, after providing safety for the defense of Washington, be formed into an expedition for the immediate object of seizing and occupying a point on the railroad southwestward of what is known as Manassas Junction, all details to be in the discretion of the commander-in-chief, and the expedition to move before or on the 22nd day of February next."

This was Lincoln acting in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the Union armed forces, prodding his commanders to fight. The general order was aimed at all of them. In the special order he drew a bead on Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan, general-in-chief of the Army.

Lincoln not only was ordering McClellan to move the Army of the Potomac against the Confederates but he also was setting the date and selecting the territory for the campaign -- the overland route to Richmond -- across the country where the Northern forces had been defeated six months before at the battle of Bull Run (Manassas) in Virginia.

The President in effect, was superseding his generals in an effort to get on with the war.

In the 10 months since the firing on Fort Sumter, the Union army had fought four land battles of consequence. The Navy had blasted out two beachheads on the eastern Confederate coast. Of the four battles only one was a Union victory--Mill Springs.

Nearly three-quarters of a million men in the Northern armed forces were costing nearly two million dollars a day--and not fighting. The Confederacy hardly was pricked and was using the time to complete its defenses.

Yet McClellan immediately objected and submitted his own plan to strike at Richmond from the southeast along one or both of the rivers -- the York and the James -- which ran from Chesapeake Bay inland toward the Confederate capital.

Lincoln countered the same day -- apparently before he read McClellan's long document, saying: "You and I have distinct and different plans for a movement of the Army of the Potomac . . .

"If you will give me satisfactory answers to the following questions, I shall gladly yield my plan to yours:

"1st. Does not your plan involve a greatly larger expenditure of time and money than mine?

"2nd. Wherein is a victory more certain by your plan than mine?

"3rd. Wherein is a victory more valuable by your plan than mine?

"4th. In fact, would it not be less valuable in this: that it would break no great line of the enemy's communications, while mine would?

"5th. In case of disaster would not a retreat be more difficult by your plan than mine?"

McClellan made no specific answers to Lincoln's questions, assuming, he wrote, that his report was answer enough.

Apparently the report eased Lincoln's mind for the President did not require execution of the special order, yet he never rescinded it.

Eventually a modified version of McClellan's plan was carried out and resulted in the Peninsula Campaign.

Across the way in a fortified camp around Manassas, Confederate Gen. Joseph E. Johnston with fewer than 50,000 soldiers, was having as many troubles with his superiors in Richmond as McClellan was having with his in Washington.

His army was being drained by the "Furlough and Bounty" act which offered one-year men a 60-day leave and $50 and other inducements if they would re-enlist for the duration of the war.

Secretary of War Judah P. Benjamin was issuing orders right and left, many without reference to Johnston.

One of these orders ran head-on into Maj. Gen. Thomas J. (Stonewall) Jackson in command of the Valley of Virginia district at Harpers Ferry and here Benjamin met his match.

Without going through Johnston, the overall commander, Benjamin ordered Jackson to withdraw Gen. William W. Loring's three brigades from Romney, in western Virginia, where "Stonewall" had left them to guard his flank.

Romney was a hardship post, the winter weather terrible. Loring's staff had composed a letter demanding a withdrawal, which he approved and forwarded it to Richmond. The letter pointed out that the force might be cut off and implied that Jackson's tactics were faulty. Benjamin acted without further check either with Johnston or Jackson.

Jackson, of course, immediately obeyed the order and then wrote to Benjamin, forwarding the letter through channels to Johnston, asking to be relieved of command and either be sent back to his professorship at Virginia Military Institute or be allowed to resign.

Johnston held up the letter and wrote back to Stonewall: "Let me beg of you to reconsider the matter . . . the character of this war . . . requires sacrifices from us who have been educated as soldiers . . ."

Jackson also wrote to Gov. John Letcher of Virginia who went to work on the problem in Richmond. Ultimately Jackson agreed to remain but he later filed charges against Loring, accusing him of neglect of duty and "conduct subversive of good order and discipline." Nothing came of these. In fact, Loring was promoted to major general but he was transferred from Jackson's district and never again served with him.

Johnston, who knew he faced the 150,000-man Army of the Potomac and that it would be moving with the coming of the first signs of spring, took a long look at his position and the possible moves of the Federals.

He anticipated that one of four routes would be taken by the Federals:

1. The Manassas route (the one Lincoln was insisting upon.)

2. The overland route toward Richmond via Fredericksburg, Va., east and south of Manassas.

3 & 4. By water to the lower Rappahannock River (McClellan's choice) or to Fort Monroe and up the peninsula between the York and the James rivers toward Richmond (the one eventually chosen).

As his army lay at the moment, Johnston could not maneuver against a Rappahannock campaign.

He concluded that he must withdraw his army and concentrate to cover the Rappahannock sector. But great stores of food and war material had been accumulated at Manassas and vicinity.

Some of the supplies could be sent south on a railroad running to Richmond but many would have to be destroyed.

That was his problem and before he could solve it he had another West Pointer to deal with, President Jefferson Davis. It would be well into March with the weather bad and the roads worse before he could move.

But at that he would beat McClellan to the punch.

Voice Of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Lily Lodge, actress daughter of John Lodge, former U. S. Ambassador to Spain will become a June bride. The lucky man is James Marcus, a New Yorker . . .

Eddie Adams has decided not to go into the show "Venue at Large" because she simply can't bring herself to face an audience so soon after Ernie Kovacs' tragic death. The producers are looking for a replacement . . .

Producer Lee Brubaker and Janis Paige have been setting the Embers aglow . . . There's a booking jam on Broadway. Three more big musicals will have to vacate their theatres shortly to make way for incoming song-and-dancers . . .

Ireland's Con O'Brien, who resigned with considerable bitterness as the United Nations man in Katanga, will do a blistering "tell all" book titled "Congo."

Oscar Brown may have been knocked down, but he wasn't knocked out, by his colossal flop, "Kicks & Co." He's already working on another show titled "Slave Story." Angels may not be as easy to come by the second time around, but he's not daunted . . .

After year the Academy Awards are televised, and year after year the people who put them on don't learn how to use the talent at their command, the exception being Bob Hope, who always contributes brilliantly. Now someone has had the dumb idea of trying to get James Cagney to dance at the Oscar proceedings, which indicates they're thinking in the area of corny nostalgia. The great motion picture industry of America ought to be able to put on a program that doesn't look like amateur night in Pook.

THE NIGHT PRESIDENT KENNEDY attended "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," the Secret Service men guarding him tried to persuade him to leave a little early to avoid the theatre mobs, but he insisted on staying to hear the rousing finale, "Brotherhood of Man"; they couldn't budge him . . .

Mirta Diaz Balart, the ex-Mrs. Fidel Castro, lunched at Blair House the other day with the editor of a monthly Caribbean magazine (not distributed in Cuba). Although she was presented with a tempting offer to pen her memoirs, she declined to commit herself "at this time."

Faye Emerson's West Coast reviews in the touring production of "Mary Stuart" have been so dazzling she's become "a hot bet" for pictures. Of course, she was a Hollywood leading woman before she (a) married President Roosevelt's son Elliot, and (b) became the first big female star of television.

ANENT the recent "Hi Ya Stranger" column in this space, Ed Risman, general manager of the Latin Quarter, reported that his cafe always has the red carpet out for ladies, escorted or not . . .

Sam Levenson is worried about his throat, which becomes hoarse and painful after most performances. He's consulting a specialist . . .

Could it be that The Clan "cooled it" with Sammy Davis Jr. because they discovered he was pals with a writer from a scandal sheet? Sammy is too nice.

to feed items to anyone like that, but the association would be apt to make his other friends a trifle nervous.

It now appears that Ingrid Bergman is set to play the mother and Richard Beymer the son in "First Love," the screen version of the play based on Romain Gary's fabulously beautiful memoir, "Promise At Dawn" -- and if that isn't the worst casting of the year, it will do until someone hires Tuesday Weld to play Whistler's mother. Ingrid, fine actress though she is, is not right for the frail, diabetic has-been actress of the story (her splendid health seems to shine through any role) and Richard Beymer, who was about the only thing wrong with "West Side Story" is hardly the ticket for the Romain Gary part. He looks like one of those beautiful male models who pose for lay-lay after year the Academy Awards are televised, and year after year the people who put them on don't learn how to use the talent at their command, the exception being Bob Hope, who always contributes brilliantly. Now someone has had the dumb idea of trying to get James Cagney to dance at the Oscar proceedings, which indicates they're thinking in the area of corny nostalgia. The great motion picture industry of America ought to be able to put on a program that doesn't look like amateur night in Pook.

EDDIE FISHER AND LIZ TAYLOR are taking time out from her "Cleopatra" chores in Rome to spend a few days in Paris. Tony Perkins scheduled a party for them -- starting at his flat and progressing to some of the Twist joints that have become so popular in Paris. Mel Ferrer and Audrey Hepburn were among those invited to go along. Latest report on Elizabeth: "She looks great."

Taped shows can run into the kind of troubles faced by magazines that have to go to press three months before they hit the newsstands. On "PM East," interviewer Mike Wallace quizzed Elizabeth Seal and Zack Matalon about their coming marriage, but by the time the program hit the airwaves Elizabeth and Zack were not only married, they were expecting a baby.

The Battery Park Project may become a fascinating news story . . . Helen O'Connell is dating Digby Wolfe, a writer from Australia . . .

Diahann Carroll is under doctor's care in Detroit, where she's the leading lady of "No Strings" -- she's developed a bad cold from the long hours of work and the freezing weather -- but she says she'd "rather die" than miss a performance.

PLANES DROP FOOD LONDON (AP) -- The government says Royal Air Force planes have dropped five million pounds of food to communities in drought-stricken east Africa since last October.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 1-27

How To Keep Well

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

FOOD PRACTICES DURING PREGNANCY

The modern woman appreciates the need for a balanced and ample diet during pregnancy. The child is more likely to be healthy at birth when an excellent diet is consumed and the mother is a better obstetrical risk, having fewer complications.

How did expectant mothers fare through the ages? According to Emma Seifrit, assistant professor of home economics, Albright college, enough women must have eaten sufficient and adequate food to continue the human race, she has traced the food practices of pregnant women from early times until the present in an article published in the Journal of American Dietetic Association.

The Emperor Constantine, for example, cautioned against mentioning unobtainable foods within hearing distance of a pregnant woman. It might create an unsatisfied desire for food that could cause the uterus to sink. Friar Albertus Magnus thought the same, except that the fetus would die of weakness when denied this food.

The Pahutes believed the fetus lived in the uterus voluntarily and came out when hungry. When delivery time neared, the mothers fasting to coax out the infant to her waiting milk supply. Pregnant Kikuyu women of Africa dieted on sweet potato, beans, and corn. They also ate leaves, suggesting they were aware the greens contained something (vitamins) beneficial to mother and child.

Expectant mothers in China appreciated pig's feet boiled in diluted acid until soft. The bones were considered a delicacy but we cannot say whether they knew about calcium and phosphorus.

We will never know whether ancient peoples paid any attention to the food needs of the pregnant woman or whether the recorded habits were independent rituals or customs. A prenatal diet began to receive attention less than 200 years ago. The advice of Dr. J. C. Barnett in 1880 is worth noting. His ideal was a "well fed, well worked, cheerful, happy woman living in a sunlit airy habitation."

SMOKING AND LUNG CANCER J. C. writes: I have been smoking more than a pack a day for 24 years. If I stopped, would this prevent the development of lung cancer or is it already too late?

REPLY No one can answer this question. Some individuals have developed lung cancer 10 years after they stopped smoking. Others live to a ripe old age even tho they are inveterate smokers.

WISHFUL THINKING J. B. writes: What is wrong with a 71 years old man who always is bragging about how he can do things well and other people can't? He even makes remarks about some people who are dead.

REPLY Nothing. With age, many traits -- good and bad -- are enhanced or exaggerated.

GALL BLADDER DISTRESS M. G. writes: Are gall bladder pains sharp or dull and where are they located?

REPLY They may be sharp when a small gallstone is trying to escape or dull when the organ is mildly infected. Pain usually is located in the upper right side of the abdomen, below the rib margin.

PAINLESS DIABETES P. W. writes: Does diabetes cause pain anywhere?

REPLY No, but complications of the disease may, including neuritis and skin ulceration.

ONE SIDED SCIATICA A. A. S. writes: Is sciatica always confined to one side?

REPLY No, but one side to a customer is the usual story.

POISONER EXECUTED BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) -- Mrs. Janos Holhos, 27, a housewife, has been executed for the poison murders of four persons she used as test victims before trying to dispose of her husband, reports a Budapest paper. The paper said Mrs. Holhos was arrested before she could try the poison on her husband.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Every time we are in a crowd and someone tells a joke, my husband says, "I've heard that one before." Or else, when they finish, he'll say, "Here's the way I heard it"—and he'll tell it over, only a little different.

I was taught that it is bad manners to do that and whether you've heard a joke or not you should pretend you haven't and laugh for courtesy's sake. My husband says that is being phony, and he would rather be honest. Who is right?

PHONY BUT NICE
DEAR PHONY: I vote with you. It's more important to be kind than frank.

DEAR ABBY: The man I married has always detested eye make-up of any kind. I went to a make-up consultant and she told me to fill in the blank spaces in my eyebrows with a little eyebrow pencil.

I used the pencil for a month and my husband didn't even notice it. I thought it made me look a lot nicer. It wasn't painted looking. Abby. It was neat and hardly noticeable. One morning my husband saw me using the pencil and he started to rave about how cheap eye make-up was. I told him I'd been using it for a month and he called me "deceitful" and cursed me as though I had taken a giant step toward degradation. The next time I went to use my eyebrow pencil, it was missing. I later found it broken to pieces in the waste basket. I am very angry. What would you do in my place?

SHAGGY BROWS
DEAR SHAGGY: Obviously it wasn't the "work" of the pencil—it was the principle of it that irritated your husband—but he certainly behaved in a childish manner. You knew he "detested" eye make-up when you him. Write off the pencil entirely.

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a man who can be the sweetest person on earth at times, but there are other times when he is so mean and ugly it is frightening. I have cried my eyes out over him. He gets on the subject of my cheating on him, and he won't give up. He spends hours trying to make me confess that I have been a sweetheart to his brother. Once he accused me of something terrible with an old man who has a room with us. He even accused me of awful things with my own brother. All his accusations are false. After he torments me, he laughs and says he was only kidding. Should I marry a man like this?

DEAR TORMENTED: Not unless you want to be tormented this way all your life. The man sounds sick.

How is the world treating you? Unload your problems on Abby, care of this paper.

Hospital Bonds Reported Sold

VIDALIA (Special) — Hospital bonds in the amount of $550,000, which were authorized in an election May 16, 1961, have been sold to Ducornau and Kees of New Orleans, and First National Bank of Memphis, Tenn., at an average interest rate of 3.6185.

According to S. L. Winston Jr., president of the Concordia Parish Police Jury, money for the new parish hospital will be available within approximately 45 days.

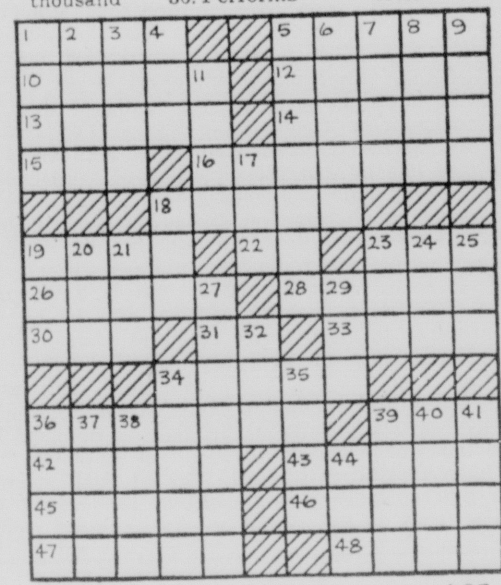

O. R. Rhodes of Monterey is chairman of the Concordia Parish Hospital Board. The hospital is a Hill - Burton Hospital and the federal government has already approved money for the construction of the new hospital which will be located near Ferriday.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ELECTION TODAY

N.O. Democrats To Cast Ballots

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — After an unexciting campaign that raised few substantial issues, New Orleans Democrats vote Saturday in a municipal primary that seems certain to produce a number of runoff elections.

Most city elective offices, from mayor and district attorney down, and vacancies in the state House and Senate are at stake, with a majority of those voting needed for nomination. Polls will be from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Republicans, who comprise some 4,000 of the 210,311 registered voters in Orleans Parish, will hold their primary also, but GOP candidates are given little chance in the April 3 general election.

A nine-man field for mayor heads the Democratic ballot, including four major candidates, each given some chance to get into the March 3 runoff. The four are all political moderates.

MARY W. ALLEN

Mayor Allen Of Winnfield To Campaign

WINNFELD (Special) — Mayor Mary W. Allen has announced she will be a candidate for reelection in the city election this spring.

Mrs. Allen, widow of the late Mayor D. C. Allen, was appointed to complete the unexpired term of her husband after he died June 6, 1960.

Mayor Allen's statement follows:

"In announcing my candidacy for mayor, I would first like to thank the people of Winnfield for the splendid cooperation I have received during the two years I have served as Mayor.

"It has been a wonderful personal experience for me. The cooperation, words of encouragement and the support of good citizens are things I shall never forget.

"I am convinced Winnfield has greater potentials than any city its size in the south; therefore, I would like to have the opportunity to serve as your mayor for a full term.

"I plan a progressive, energetic four-year term which includes re-surfacing to our blacktop streets periodically, a sidewalk program and a clean, well lighted city. I will devote full time to the development and execution of plans to promote the growth of Winnfield and to make it a better place in which to live.

"Later, I will publish more specific details concerning my plans and platform. In the meantime, I earnestly solicit your consideration, and will sincerely appreciate your vote and support."

Mayor Allen was the first candidate for mayor or alderman to make a definite announcement for the Spring city election.

Mrs. Mary C. Flournoy said there are approximately 3,000 voters eligible to vote in the election.

She said she didn't think there would be much change in that number by the time the registration period closes, 30 days before election.

She also said there are approximately 2,000 white voters, the remainder being Negro.

The Election Board meets next Wednesday.

Outstanding Man Sought By West Monroe Jaycees

Nominations are being received by the West Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce for the "Young Man of the Year."

Names of all nominees are being kept secret.

The winner will enter state competition in New Orleans Feb. 10 - 11. Nominees are judged on their civic, religious and personal achievements and contributions to community welfare.

The Distinguished Service Award, same as an award for the most outstanding young man, is one of the highest awards given by the Jaycees, Ed West, president of the organization said.

Soviets In Dark On Glenn's Flight

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet citizens, still ignorant about America's plans to send Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. into orbit Saturday, were expected to follow his flight with great interest when they hear about it.

The Soviet radio, press and television Friday maintained silence about the United States' scheduled effort to send a man circling the globe. They also said nothing about Friday's projected launching of an instrument satellite to the moon.

But if they follow past form, Soviet propagandists were expected to make a point of noting that Maj. Yuri Gagarin and Maj. Gherman Titov did it first.

Recovery Team Waits For Glenn

By JOSEPH BREU

ABOARD THE CARRIER RANDOLPH AT SEA (UPI) — "Here's to John Glenn—and three times around."

Those words, toasted in coffee, were spoken by Army Capt. Dr. Jerome Strong who will help examine astronaut John H. Glenn aboard the carrier Randolph after his flight through space.

Most of all, these men want Lt. Col. Glenn to come back to earth safely.

But they also want him to make his full three orbits of the earth so it will be the Randolph recovery team that will pluck him and his "Friendship 7" Mercury capsule from the ocean.

The Randolph is the "prime recovery vessel" in this first attempt by the United States to put a man into orbit.

The carrier and two destroyers, the Ellison and McNair, patrol the 200-by-44-mile area in which Glenn is expected to come down at the end of his third orbit. The area is located generally about 800 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral and 250 miles northeast of San Juan.

It is an experienced recovery team that waits for Glenn aboard the Randolph. Dr. Strong of Grand Rapids, Mich., and the head of the medical recovery team on the ship, Navy Comdr. Robert C. Laning, made the initial examinations of astronaut Alan B. Shepard and Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom after their sub-orbital flights.

The Randolph, incidentally, is the ship that picked up Grissom after his flight through space last July.

The two members of the Navy diving team which will attach a new safety device called a "floatation belt" to the capsule after it lands in the ocean each have

Bolivian Police Visit LTI Here: Tour Facility

The guests of the Louisiana Training Institute here Thursday were three members of the National Police of Bolivia.

The trio were flown to Monroe early in the day by the East Baton Rouge sheriff's department for a tour of operations at the state school and returned to the capital city via air in mid-afternoon.

By name, Lts. Jaime Ferrel, Mario Teran and Victor Zizold, they are in the country on a nine and a half month inspection of United States law enforcement and court procedures.

Each plans a career with the national police in Bolivia, which like most Latin American nations has a national force rather than the state, parish and local are familiar here.

Their hosts Thursday included Lt. N. W. Paxton and Deputy Roger Ward, members of the East Baton Rouge Sheriff's Department.

Making their second tour of this country since joining the Bolivian national force, the policemen are visiting law enforcement agencies and courts throughout the nation. The weekend schedule includes Mobile, Ala., from which they will fly to Kansas and Missouri for inspection of federal narcotics and customs schools.

The visit at the training school here was part of a tour of state agencies, among them the penitentiary at Angola, the juvenile deputy program in Plaquemines Parish, the family court at Baton Rouge and the sheriff's department headquartered there.

Sponsoring the trip is the International Association of Police Chiefs. They will instruct fellow officers upon their return home.

The three were highly complimentary of the South and set it apart as much friendlier generally than other sections of the country.

Plot Against Kai-Shek Bared

TAIPEI (UPI) — A high government official said Friday that opposition leader Su Tung-chi has confessed plotting an armed revolt against President Chiang Kai-shek.

Su, a former district councilman and a leader of the movement to organize a legal opposition party against Chiang, is the first person in the 10 years the Nationalists have been on Formosa to be accused of plotting revolt.

"We have concrete evidence that Su attempted to overthrow the government," said Lt. Gen. Wang Chao-fan, chief spokesman for the Taiwan garrison command.

Treason charges, which carry a maximum penalty of death, were filed recently against Su and several other men. They were accused of plotting to overthrow the government with the aid of arms seized in a raid on a government sugar mill.

10 years of diving experience behind them.

The divers, Robert K. Dixon and Bobby E. Todd of Norfolk, Va., have also made 50 "dry runs" with the new device, including a couple of workouts with Shepard floating in the capsule.

The man who will fly the Marine helicopter that will carry Glenn from the capsule to the carrier is a pilot of 19 years experience—and an old friend of Glenn's. Maj. Wilbur O. Nelson of Chicago served with Lt. Col. Glenn on Guam after World War II.

There is a quiet confidence among these men and throughout the entire crew of the ship. They are sure they can handle any problem that will arise—and they are probably right simply because every conceivable thing that could happen to Glenn and his spacecraft has been planned for.

Court's Freeing Of Convicted Persons Rapped

"We can't have unbridled individual liberties and at the same time have a safe, stable society," stressed District Attorney Albin P. Lassiter before the Monroe Rotary Club.

Lassiter blasted the U.S. Supreme Court for its "dangerous attitude" in freeing persons convicted of crimes in lower courts.

"The court has taken it upon itself, without constitutional authorization, to police the police," he pointed out. "It has also functioned at times as a super-legislative body."

"Moreover, even as regards its constitutional authorized judicial function, the court has gone far beyond all reasonable bounds in imposing its own divided concepts of due process upon the states."

"It has also gone much too far as regards its concepts of admissibility of evidence in criminal prosecutions in the federal courts."

He quoted Northwestern University Professor of Criminal Law Fred E. Inbau, of Chicago, an international authority in criminal law, to bring stress upon the statements.

Inbau has warned that the federal courts and government are "not only neglecting to take adequate measures against the criminal element . . . but are actually facilitating their activities."

Federal decisions to turn convicted persons loose, "are not avowedly for the purpose of lending aid and comfort to the criminal element, but the effect is the same. It is all being done in the name of 'individual civil liberties,'" Inbau states.

Competitive Test Scheduled For Police Openings

Monroe Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service Board Chairman W. L. Husted announced Friday the setting of March 16 as the date of competitive civil service examinations to fill posts in two classifications on the local police force.

Examinations are set to begin at 1:30 p.m. on that date, he said, and will be conducted in the First Baptist Church, facing the Monroe city hall.

Husted said examinations for four other positions, all promotional and including patrolman first class, director of traffic, assistant chief of police and chief juvenile probationer, would be held at the same time.

Primary examinations are for entrance patrolmen and radio and switchboard operator.

Application forms will be available from Patrolman Leo Earl until March 5.

FIVE MONROE STUDENTS were among the eleven Northeast State College cadets in the ROTC to receive second lieutenant commissions in the U. S. Army in special ceremonies

Pair Sought In Robbery Are Captured

Two men, sought since October 20, 1960, for a shooting in the course of an armed robbery near Natchitoches, were boxed in and captured Thursday night by FBI agents on a highway between Forest Park and Atlanta, Ga.

Identified as Walter Leo Haney, 46, and Ira Travis Sutton, 35, the pair, with Sutton driving, were taken after a three mile chase in a car stolen Jan. 17 from a lot in West Monroe.

They had escaped last Aug. 28 by sawing through the bars of the Natchitoches jail where they were being held for the robbery and shooting. The FBI entered the case soon afterward, at the request of Natchitoches authorities, and filed papers November 28 of the same year declaring Haney and Sutton to have fled the state to avoid prosecution.

The FBI said yesterday, the pair were being held in Fulton County jail at Atlanta and would appear before the U. S. Commissioner.

Their case had a dramatic return to the headlines Sunday when Sutton's wife, Mrs. Katie Ruth Gladden Patterson, was shot and killed by an FBI agent near her parents' Gadsden, Ala., home where he had been stationed in the belief Sutton might be hiding there. The agent, U. W. Major, is free under $3,000 bond, charged with murder.

A native of Texas, Sutton has

Suits For Damages Filed By Utilities

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Four utilities filed 13 suits in New York Friday for triple damages from 25 electrical equipment manufacturing companies which were convicted last year of collusion in fixing prices.

The plaintiffs are New Orleans Public Service, Louisiana Power and Light, Mississippi Power and Light and Arkansas Power and Light.
